U.N. Committee Virtually Approves Plan For Holy Land Conciliation Group

Final Vote Delayed Until Today; Boundary Directives Defeated

PARIS, Dec. 3 (AP)—The United Nations Political Committee virtually approved tonight a British proposal setting up a three-nation Palestine conciliation commission but giving it no specific directives.

Weary commttee delegates completed taking a paragraph by paragraph vote on the proposal but delayed the final vote until tomorrow when they can study the corrected text.

Adjournment came after three wrangling sessions today and tonight.

The 58-nation commttee still must act on a Canadian suggestion calling upon the United States, Britain, France and Russia to select the three nations which will compose the conciliation commission.

Committee approval was granted to a French suggestion that the commission have its headquarters in Jerusalem and that the United Nations furnish enough guards to protect the commission.

Russia Demands Troop Withdrawal

The committee also must act on a Russian resolution demanding the withdrawal of all foreign troops and military personnel from Palestine; on the Syrian proposal for a single state in Palestine which would have an Arab majority, and a Syrian request for an opinion by the International Court of Justice on the United Nations partition plan.

Earlier the United States abandoned all attempts to push definite ideas on Israel's boundaries through the General Assembly. A committee revolt continued today against British and American efforts to write directives on boundaries into the resolution. The delegates killed a British proposal which many opponents charged was intended to give the Arab part of the Holy Land to Trans-Jordan.

Yesterday the Political Committee rejected two British and American attempts to include the partition plan and the Bernadotte report as starting points for considering Israle's boundaries.

But today the United States delegation got committee approval of a broad program permitting a conciliation commission to study the boundary issues without any specific instructions. The vote was 42 to two with 12 abstentions.

Bernadotte Plan Loses Ground

On the basis of the Political Committee's actions Australian, New Zealand, American and Russian informants said it was inevitable now that less emphasis will be placed on the plan of the assassinated mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, in any final Palestine settlement.

Bernadotte suggested the original partition scheme be revised by giving the Negev Desert to the Arabs and Western Galilee to the Jews. The Jews opposed his plan because it would reduce the partition-plan Israel by two-thirds or more. The Arabs opposed it because they are against any Palestine partition.

By a vote of 19 to 17 at a night session the committee approved making Haifa a free port and Lydda a free airport, only part of the Bernadotte recommendation to be passed so far. The Jews now hold both places.

Second Man Is Sentenced For Raping Negro Woman

WETUMPKA, Ala., Dec. 3 (AP) — The second of two white men charged with raping two negro women got a 45-year sentence after pleading guilty today.

The defendant, Jack Oliver, 21, entered the plea before testimony started and agreed to accept the same sentence which a Circuit Court jury imposed on his cousin, John C. Howard, Jr., 30, last night. The 45-year sentence was approved by the jury.

Howard, operator of a garage and mattress factory, was found guilty on a charge of raping 22-year-old Melinda Jackson last spring.

Man Gets Caught In Own Trap As Dog Sets It Off

ATCO, N. J., Dec. 3 (AP) — Stanley Belleck, 64, believed that someone might break into his one-room home. So he rigged up a trap.

He put a shotgun in his front window and strung a wire, attached to the trigger, to inside the front door.

Last night Belleck was puttering in the front yard. The front door was open. His pet dog went back into the house. The dog fell over the wire. The shotgun went off.

Pellets grazed the back of Belleck's head, sending him to West Jersey Hospital where six stitches were taken in his scalp.

Madam Chiang, Marshall Confer For Four Hours

Tells Reporters She's "Encouraged"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek conferred with Secretary of State Marshall today for the second time in 24 hours and told reporters she came away "encouraged."

The Chinese President's wife is here seeking stepped-up help for the Nationalist government in its war against the Chinese Reds. She visited Marshall at Walter Reed Hospital, where he is undergoing a physical checkup.

"We talked about China and I am encouraged," Mme. Chiang told reporters as she emerged from a visit which lasted nearly four hours.

She added with a smile:

"I would like to know anybody who has seen and talked with Gen. Marshall and does not come away encouraged."

Accompanied By Mrs. Marshall

Mme. Chiang was accompanied by Mrs. Marshall, as was the case when she made her first brief visit to the Cabinet officer late yesterday. She and Mrs. Marshall lunched with the Secretary. The Chinese First Lady is a house guest at the Marshalls' home at Leesburg, Va.

Mme. Chiang said she has not completed further plans for her stay in the United States, pressing home her appeal for help.

President Truman, however, told his news conference yesterday that he has granted her request for an interview. He did not say when he would meet her.

Meanwhile, he talked over foreign affairs in a 45-minute session with his Cabinet today.

There still was no hint of what, if any, new steps the administration might have in mind to aid China. The Nationalist situation is regarded here, however, as most critical; much of the unofficial talk of aid has centered on the question of whether any help could be effective.

Trip Not Dramatized

In contrast with her visit of 1942-43, when Mme. Chiang was acclaimed as the representative of a heroic country fighting off the Japanese, Mme. Chiang's trip this time has not been dramatized.

Nevertheless, aides reported, she is getting invitations to speak from all over the country. And while no tour seems in prospect, these invitations are known to have encouraged the Chincse in their belief in support from the American people.

Sen. Connally (D-Tex), a White House visitor today, said that so far as he knows, Mme. Chiang has not asked to appear before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee "and I don't imagine she will be asked."

Reds March To Intercept China Army

Defer South Drive To Meet Threat Of Ex-Suchow Garrison

NANKING, Dec. 3 (AP)—Communist columns on the Hwai River line 100 miles from Nanking swung back north today to meet the threat of large Chinese government forces marching south from Suchow.

Collision of these armies of more than 100,000 combatants on each side at some still-to-be determined point was expected to produce decisive results.

The government's Suchow garrison abandoned Suchow December 1 and has moved possibly 40 miles south, confronted only by small Communist holding forces.

Three Army Groups

This former Suchow garrison is in three army groups, the Second, 13th and 16th, totalling about 250,000 men but estimated to have 110,000 effective fighting troops.

Its evident mission is to make contact with the government 12th Army Group of 100,000 men tightly encircled by an equal number of Communists 30 miles farther southwest.

Sixty miles southeast, the government Sixth and Eighth Army Groups of 80,000 men are holding a salient north of the Hwai River line.

Seven Communist columns under Gen. Chen Yi have been attacking the Hwai River salient.

Now, dispatches say, they have broken off the assault. Leaving only a small holding force behind, Chen Yi is reported sending six of his columns north as rapidly as possible to stop the government march south from Suchow.

His seventh column is reported marching northwest to join Gen. Liu Po-Cheng's seven columns in strengthening the noose around the tropped government 12th Army Group.

Suchow's Fall Confirmed

To rescue the 12th Army Group, the former Suchow garrison faced the prospect of a 30-mile fighting advance, plus another miles to reach the Hwai River salient.

When and where the issue would be joined remained in doubt.

Authoritative government military quarters meanwhile confirmed the abandonment of Suchow and its seizure by the Communists.

These sources said the comparatively small Red force moved in from the northeast to find the supplies of that once-vital base destroyed.

Independent air observers said smoke and flames showed the Suchow munition and supply dumps had been put to the torch, along with all aircraft that could not be flown out.

Union Raps Phone Rate Hike Request

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—The Communications Workers of America, independent, today described as "excessive" a request by the Bell Telephone System for rate increases totaling $240,000,000.

The union, which bargains with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for 230,000 workers, said rate increases already granted to A. T. & T.'s Bell System total $170,000,000 a year.

"Despite rising costs—the excuse used by the company for wanting still more rate increases—the Bell System will end up this year with a gross profit of at least $50,000,000 higher than for 1947," said CWA President Joseph A. Beirne in a statement.

Beirne took issue with the A. T. & T. use of "higher wage costs" as a factor. He said:

"Last year wage increases to telephone workers totaled $93,000,000. Yet the company has already admitted boosting rates $170,000,000 a year, almost double the pay hikes they granted."

In New York city the American Telephone and Telegraph Company said Beirne's statement "does not recognize the simple fact that in connection with the type of business for which rate increases are being sought, the Bell System operating companies are earning an average of less than four and one-half per cent on invested capital."

Ex-Rep. Slaughter Pleads Innocent In Lobby Case

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—Former Congressman Roger C. Slaughter pleaded innocent in federal court today to charges of violating the lobby registration law.

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut continued Slaughter in $1,000 bond. No trial date was set.

Slaughter, a Missouri Demcorat, has declared that the charges were "politically inspired" and resulted from his feud with President Truman. Slaughter was defeated for re-nomination to the House in 1946 after Mr. Truman endorsed his opponent in the Missouri Democratic primary.

Truman Silences Service Protests Over Budget Cuts

Would Keep Money Disputes In Family

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — President Truman, struggling with next year's budget, clamped a virtual "silence" order today on the armed forces and other agencies seeking to convince the public they need more money.

Family quarrels about money should be kept in the family, was the sense of a letter he sent to the Army, Navy and Air Force—and all other government agencies.

The letter urged the departments to "exercise extreme caution" in talking about budget affairs and said the purpose was to "prevent any premature announcements." (The White House traditionally has claimed the right to make the first announcements on the annual government budgets, a tradition not always observed.)

At the White House, it was said the letter was "not a gag" on the departments. Nevertheless, it set off a series of directives by the secretaries of the three armed services to their personnel to keep their money arguments out of the public eye. The Army even classified the relevant figures as secret.

Services Raise Clamor

The letter came in the midst of a rising number of published stories describing the reaction of each service to Mr. Truman's proposal that the overall military budget for the next fiscal year, beginning next July 1, be limited to $15,000,000,000. Each service has let it be known that its own plans in the national defense picture must be altered if the budget ceiling is held to the level tentativly set by the White House and Budget Bureau.

At the outset, the total of estimates by the three services was in the neighborhood of $23,000,000,000. Then a second estimate ranged around $17,000,000,000. Present spending is at the rate of about $12,000,000,000 a year.

The question of how much to spend on military needs ties directly in with how much shall be taken from taxpayers.

Sawyer Hints Curbs, Tax Boost May Be Necessary

But Commerce Chief Tries To Reassure American Business

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, speaking with President Truman's blessing, sought tonight to end the fears of business over the administration's forthcoming economic program. He left the way open, however, for further economic controls and increased taxes.

Sawyer, in the major speech before the closing session of the National Association of Manufacturers' 53rd annual Congress of American Industry, said controls might have to be imposed if the military budget for the next fiscal year exceeds the current budget.

He also cautioned businessmen to consider "the inflationary effect of large profits and unreasonably high prices" and asked that big business co-operate with the small businessman.

The Commerce Chief called for a co-operative effort by all groups to end inflation and said "business has nothing to fear from such a program."

More Taxes Feared

Sawyer's reassurance apparently was aimed at those businessmen who felt that President Truman's unexpected election victory would be a signal for a renewed drive to get legislation that businessmen have opposed.

High on the list of business fears were: The threat of more taxes including the excess profits tax, restoration of price controls, and the entry of government into business in more and more fields.

Graphic evidence of business fears was the stock market decline since the election, which lopped off about $8 billion from the total market value of all shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Earlier this week in Washington, Sawyer told newsmen President Truman had read his speech and approved it. The President plans to lay an anti-inflation program before Congress in January.

Concerning taxes, Sawyer told a dinner meeting of nearly 2,000 of the nation's leading industrialists and busiessmen that "in an inflationary period we must build up a surplus in the federal budget, to be used to help our huge national debt."

Tax Cut "Prolongs" Inflation

"The result of recent tax reductions, which were made at a time when the federal government was assuming new and extensive responsibilities for foreign aid and national defense, has been a drastic decrease in the federal cash sur-

French Plan For Ruhr Is Given To U.S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—France proposed a three-point plan to the United States tonight to keep the Ruhr from serving again as a German war arsenal.

The French formula would continue international controls even after occupation troops have left Germany.

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet told newsmen the plan is "also in the interest of Germany—and I want to emphasize that because we want to see Germany's economy eventually integrated into the economy of Europe."

Bonnett presented the plan in a formal note to Undersecretary of State Lovett.

Earlier this week, France had objected vigorously to a British-American program to hand over limited control of the vast Ruhr industries to the Germans. The French Assembly, mindful of the Ruhr's war-making potentialities, voted 377-181 last night to repudiate any such action.

But Lovett made it clear to newsmen in Washington yesterday that the United States—while determined to prevent a rebirth of German military might—plans to go ahead with the program of limited German management as a stimulus to Germany's postwar recovery.

Bonnet said the French government's proposals called for:

2—Denazification of management of the Ruhr industries.

3—Continued Allied control over production of coal, steel and coke industries and a voice in distribution of investments these factories might make.

"Forever Amber" Author Divorces Artie Shaw

RENO, Nev., Dec. 3. (AP)—The sixth wife of Band Leader Artie Shaw divorced him today.

She was Kathleen Winsor Herwig Shaw, author of "Forever Amber."

After a hearing of only four minutes, Judge A. J. Maestretti gave her a divorce on grounds of extreme mental cruelty.

Ex-Cop Must Pay Third Of Income To Girl, 19, He Crippled For Life

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Former Rookie Policeman Wayne W. Edmondson, 22, was "sentenced" today to pay one-third of his net income for five years to a 19-year-old girl crippled for life in a night club shooting.

Edmondson was convicted November 9 of assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting of Miss Dorothy Kilmer. He already had been suspended from the police force.

District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff gave Edmondson a five to 15 months suspended sentence and placed him on probation for five years, during which, by court order he must contribute to Miss Kilmer's support.

The girl's spinal cord was severed by a single shot from Edmondson's .38 caliber pistol which he was brandishing in the night club during an off-duty visit. While convicting on the assault charge, a district court jury found the actual shooting accidental.

Doctors have told Miss Kilmer she will never walk again.

West Coast Dock Strike Ends; New Hitch Develops

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3. (AP)—The West Coast maritime strike ended officially at noon today. But there was no certainty that long-idled ships would sail in the immediate future.

No sooner did the last of the striking CIO and independent unions come to terms in their 93-day strike than a new maritime hitch developed in demands of the non-striking AFL Sailors Union of the Pacific.

Harry Lundeberg, head of the AFL-SUP, announced his men would sail no ships unless certain jurisdictional guarantees were acknowledged and contract wage provisions met.

Church Council Adopts Anti-Segregation Report

CINCINNATI, Dec. 3 (AP) — The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America went all out today for elimination or racial segregation.

In so doing, America's largest Protestant church group approved President Truman's civil rights program in principle—and then went further.

Delegates adopted a report which says in effect that it is fine to pass a law abolishing racial segregation, but what really is needed is to have every man believe in his heart that non-segregation is 100 per cent right, and practice it.

The council's newly-elected president, Bishop John S. Stamm, Harrisburg, Pa., hailed the action at a news conference.

"These are the Christian principles and the objective toward which we are striving," he said.

The council, which embraces 27 denominations with more than 28,000,000 members, reaffirmed a declaration that racial segregation is "unnecessary and undesirable." It had said that in other years, but it went all the way today by saying:

"As proof of their sincerity, the churches must work for a non-segregated church and a non-segregated society."

The report, adopted near the close of the council's 40th anniversary convention, met scattered opposition during a discussion period. However, it was adopted without a single "nay" voice vote.

The report asserted that "the flagrant violation of human rights in our generation has outraged Christian feeling.

"All of the rich gifts which God imparts to man should be available to all without distinction as to race color, sex, birth, nationality o creed."

Microfilms Of "Secret" Data Found In Pumpkin On Chambers' Md. Farm

Mechanic Shot By Handlebar From Bicycle

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 3 (AP) —Andrew Frantz, 31-year-old garageman, accidentally shot himself with a bicycle handlebar. He explained today he didn't know it was loaded.

Frantz was making the handlebar into a handle for a welding torch yesterday when he realized something was inside the bar. He rested the bar on his stomach and tried to hammer the obstruction out.

It exploded, the obstruction, sheriff's deputies said, was a 16-gauge shotgun shell. He is recovering.

Committee Claims Information "Fed Out Of State Dept."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — The House Un-American Activities Committe declared tonight that a bunch of microfilms, found in a hollow pumpkin on a Maryland farm, offers conclusive evidence that national security information was "fed out of the State Department" before the war.

Rep. Mundt (R-SD), who made the announcement on behalf of the committee, said the microfilms were obtained from Whittaker Chambers, a self-described former Communist who now is a senior editor on Time magazine.

In a statement, Mundt said the copied documents were given Chambers by "a member of the Communist underground" who was not identified.

Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the committee, told reporters that Chambers was subpoenaed yesterday to produce the documents.

Then, according to Stripling's account—

Chambers took two committee agents to his farm near Westminster, Md. He led them to a spot back of the farmhouse and showed them a pumpkin, hollowed out, jack-o'-lantern fashion, but minus a face.

Chambers lifted the top off the pumpkin and fished out the microfilms, Striping said.

Mundt's Statement

Mundt's statement said:

"There is now in the possession of the committee, under 24 hour guard, microfilmed copies of documents of tremendous importance, which were removed from the offices of the State Department and turned over to Chambers for the purpose of transmittal to Russian Communist agents.

"These documents are of such startling and significant importance, and reveal such a vast network of Communist espionage within the State Department, that they far exceed anything yet brought before the committee in its 10-year history.

"These microfilms have been the object of a 10-year search by agents of the United States government and provide definite proof of one of the most extensive espionage rings in the history of the United States.

"On the basis of evidence now before the committee, it appears that conclusive proof has been established that secret documents of direct significance to our national security was fed out of the State Department by a member of the Communist underground to Whittaker Chambers, who at that time was operating as one of the Washington contacts for the Communist underground operating in America."

May Reopen Hearings

Mundt, chairman of a subcommittee, released the new information on behalf of the entire Un-American Activities group.

Te announced that he is getting in touch with other members with the aim of reopening he committee's hearings into alleged Communist espionage as soon as possible.

In one of the sensation packed sessions at last summer's hearings, Chambers testified under oath that he was a member of a prewar Red underground in this country. Chambers now is a senior editor of Time magazine, and testified he has renounced Communism.

In the course of his testimony, he named several other persons then in government as having belonged to the underground.

In the hearings last summer,

Attempts To Halt Berlin Anti-Red Rallies Continue

Hecklers Bounced By Meeting Guards

BERLIN, Dec. 3. — (AP)—Fighting mad Social Democrats in West Berlin tonight threw Communist invaders out of their election campaign rally and served defiant notice that they are "too tough" to bend under Red dictatorship.

The Communist hecklers, following a week-long pattern, tried to break up one of the final rallies of the powerful Social Democratic Party and bumped into hard and willing fists.

Social Democratic Party guards bounced a half dozen of the hecklers around. Then party physicians waiting at a specially-erected first aid station dressed the victims' cuts and bruises.

Use of guards by various parties to protect their meetings from street fighters dates back to pre-1933 days when Nazi and Communist strong-arm gangs fought in Berlin streets.

After order was restored tonight, Ernst Reuter, who is expected to be made mayor after next Sunday's election, cried:

"We know who our foe is but he does not know how tough we are."

Reuter accused German Communists of playing a Judas game:

"They have sold out their own people for 30 pieces of silver." Then he shouted:

"The airlift is working day and night, proof that the world will not desert us. We will hold out until that day when this power retreats which does not belong on European soil. Some day this dictatorship will fail and then freedom will reign also on the other (Russian) side of the Brandenburg Gate and the Red flag will be supplanted by the German flag."

Reuter addressed the biggest of a dozen campaign meetings in the three western sectors, climaxing a drive to bring out the heaviest vote possible Sunday as a repudiation of the Communists.

The Communist-dominated Social Unity Party (SED) is boycotting the election which was scheduled under the city constitution approved by all four occupying powers. Soviet authorities, however, have banned voting in the eastern sector Sunday. They have recognized a Communist rump regime elected by a show of hands at a mass meeting in East Berlin this week as "the only legal organ of the city administration."

The Social Democrats, warned by the conduct of Communist rowdies at earlier rallies, were ready tonight even though the meeting was held in front of the Soviet-controlled Radio Berlin in the British sector. As soon as the hecklers opened up, Socialist guards grabbed them and started swinging. The treatment dished out to a half dozen or so took the starch out of the others who shut up immediately.

Outside, sporadic punching ensued. The outnumbered Communists fled to the safety of the radio station where Russian soldiers are on guard.

Actress Rita Hayworth Suspended By Columbia

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3. (AP)—Rita Hayworth has been suspended from her $248,000 a year acting job for "refusal to report for work," Columbia Pictures announced today.

The auburn-haired screen siren was due to appear at the studio yesterday to begin a new film, "Lona Hanson." When she did not answer the call, Rita was placed on suspension.

Robot Ear Hears Phone Ring And Turns On Light

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 3—(AP)—A new robot ear that hears the phone ring and turns on the light was shown to doctors at the American Medical Association meeting today.

It is used to save fumbling in the dark to reach a phone beside the bed, or stumbling to get to a phone somewhere else.

The ear is also used when no one is at home to turn on the light outside the front door. When the householder gets ready to go home, he calls his house and the ear turns on the light. No one needs to answer the phone.

The robot is a box on which the telephone is placed. When the phone rings, the noise of the bell vibrates a salt crystal in the box. The vibration makes electricity flow in the salt, and the current is amplified to turn the light switch. The box and phone are set in the circuit with the light to be turned on. In this way the ear can be used to light any lamp in the house, or outside.

The device comes from wartime submarine and surface ship detection by sound. Nothing except the rate of vibration of a phone bell affects this ear.

Besides doctors, FBI men have been getting these ears because they are on call 24 hours of the day. Undertakers have gotten them because more people seem to die at night. The new device is made by a Cleveland firm (the Fone-Lite Division of the Omega Safety Razor Company) and in that city newspaper reporters have been buying the ears.

U.N. Committee Virtually Approves Plan For Holy Land Conciliation Group

Final Vote Delayed Until Today; Boundary Directives Defeated

PARIS, Dec. 3 (AP)—The United Nations Political Committee virtually approved tonight a British proposal setting up a three-nation Palestine conciliation commission but giving it no specific directives.

The committee also must act on a Russian resolution demanding the withdrawal of all foreign troops and military personnel from Palestine; on the Syrian proposal for a single state in Palestine which would have an Arab majority, and a Syrian request for an opinion by the International Court of Justice on the United Nations partition plan.

Yesterday the Political Committee rejected two British and American attempts to include the partition plan and the Bernadotte report as starting points for considering Israle's boundaries.

Bernadotte Plan Loses Ground

On the basis of the Political Committee's actions Australian, New Zealand, American and Russian informants said it was inevitable now that less emphasis will be placed on the plan of the assassinated mediator, Count Folke Bernadotte, in any final Palestine settlement.

Bernadotte suggested the original partition scheme be revised by giving the Negev Desert to the Arabs and Western Galilee to the Jews. The Jews opposed his plan because it would reduce the partition-plan Israel by two-thirds or more. The Arabs opposed it because they are against any Palestine partition.

By a vote of 19 to 17 at a night session the committee approved making Haifa a free port and Lydda a free airport, only part of the Bernadotte recommendation to be passed so far. The Jews now hold both places.

Second Man Is Sentenced For Raping Negro Woman

WETUMPKA, Ala., Dec. 3 (AP) — The second of two white men charged with raping two negro women got a 45-year sentence after pleading guilty today.

The defendant, Jack Oliver, 21, entered the plea before testimony started and agreed to accept the same sentence which a Circuit Court jury imposed on his cousin, John C. Howard, Jr., 30, last night. The 45-year sentence was approved by the jury.

Howard, operator of a garage and mattress factory, was found guilty on a charge of raping 22-year-old Melinda Jackson last spring.

The younger man was accused of raping Annie Grayson, 23.

Reds March To Intercept China Army

Defer South Drive To Meet Threat Of Ex-Suchow Garrison

NANKING, Dec. 3 (AP)—Communist columns on the Hwai River line 100 miles from Nanking swung back north today to meet the threat of large Chinese government forces marching south from Suchow.

Collision of these armies of more than 100,000 combatants on each side at some still-to-be determined point was expected to produce decisive results.

Latest pro-government dispatches from the front gave this picture of an unusual military situation:

The government's Suchow garrison abandoned Suchow December 1 and has moved possibly 40 miles south, confronted only by small Communist holding forces.

Three Army Groups

This former Suchow garrison is in three army groups, the Second, 13th and 16th, totalling about 250,000 men but estimated to have 110,000 effective fighting troops.

Its evident mission is to make contact with the government 12th Army Group of 100,000 men tightly encircled by an equal number of Communists 30 miles farther southwest.

Sixty miles southeast, the government Sixth and Eighth Army Groups of 80,000 men are holding a salient north of the Hwai River line.

Seven Communist columns under Gen. Chen Yi have been attacking the Hwai River salient.

Now, dispatches say, they have broken off the assault. Leaving only a small holding force behind, Chen Yi is reported sending six of his columns north as rapidly as possible to stop the government march south from Suchow.

His seventh column is reported marching northwest to join Gen. Liu Po-Cheng's seven columns in strengthening the noose around the tropped government 12th Army Group.

Suchow's Fall Confirmed

To rescue the 12th Army Group, the former Suchow garrison faced the prospect of a 30-mile fighting advance, plus another miles to reach the Hwai River salient.

When and where the issue would be joined remained in doubt.

Authoritative government military quarters meanwhile confirmed the abandonment of Suchow and its seizure by the Communists.

These sources said the comparatively small Red force moved in from the northeast to find the supplies of that once-vital base destroyed.

Independent air observers said smoke and flames showed the Suchow munition and supply dumps had been put to the torch, along with all aircraft that could not be flown out.

Union Raps Phone Rate Hike Request

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—The Communications Workers of America, independent, today described as "excessive" a request by the Bell Telephone System for rate increases totaling $240,000,000.

The union, which bargains with the American Telephone and Telegraph Company for 230,000 workers, said rate increases already granted to A. T. & T.'s Bell System total $170,000,000 a year.

"Despite rising costs—the excuse used by the company for wanting still more rate increases—the Bell System will end up this year with a gross profit of at least $50,000,000 higher than for 1947," said CWA President Joseph A. Beirne in a statement.

Beirne took issue with the A. T. & T. use of "higher wage costs" as a factor. He said:

"Last year wage increases to telephone workers totaled $93,000,000. Yet the company has already admitted boosting rates $170,000,000 a year, almost double the pay hikes they granted."

In New York city the American Telephone and Telegraph Company said Beirne's statement "does not recognize the simple fact that in connection with the type of business for which rate increases are being sought, the Bell System operating companies are earning an average of less than four and one-half per cent on invested capital."

Ex-Rep. Slaughter Pleads Innocent In Lobby Case

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—Former Congressman Roger C. Slaughter pleaded innocent in federal court today to charges of violating the lobby registration law.

Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut continued Slaughter in $1,000 bond. No trial date was set.

Slaughter, a Missouri Demcorat, has declared that the charges were "politically inspired" and resulted from his feud with President Truman. Slaughter was defeated for re-nomination to the House in 1946 after Mr. Truman endorsed his opponent in the Missouri Democratic primary.

Truman Silences Service Protests Over Budget Cuts

Would Keep Money Disputes In Family

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — President Truman, struggling with next year's budget, clamped a virtual "silence" order today on the armed forces and other agencies seeking to convince the public they need more money.

Family quarrels about money should be kept in the family, was the sense of a letter he sent to the Army, Navy and Air Force—and all other government agencies.

The letter urged the departments to "exercise extreme caution" in talking about budget affairs and said the purpose was to "prevent any premature announcements." (The White House traditionally has claimed the right to make the first announcements on the annual government budgets, a tradition not always observed.)

At the White House, it was said the letter was "not a gag" on the departments. Nevertheless, it set off a series of directives by the secretaries of the three armed services to their personnel to keep their money arguments out of the public eye. The Army even classified the relevant figures as secret.

Services Raise Clamor

The letter came in the midst of a rising number of published stories describing the reaction of each service to Mr. Truman's proposal that the overall military budget for the next fiscal year, beginning next July 1, be limited to $15,000,000,000. Each service has let it be known that its own plans in the national defense picture must be altered if the budget ceiling is held to the level tentativly set by the White House and Budget Bureau.

At the outset, the total of estimates by the three services was in the neighborhood of $23,000,000,000. Then a second estimate ranged around $17,000,000,000. Present spending is at the rate of about $12,000,000,000 a year.

The question of how much to spend on military needs ties directly in with how much shall be taken from taxpayers.

Sawyer Hints Curbs, Tax Boost May Be Necessary

But Commerce Chief Tries To Reassure American Business

NEW YORK, Dec. 3—(AP)—Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer, speaking with President Truman's blessing, sought tonight to end the fears of business over the administration's forthcoming economic program. He left the way open, however, for further economic controls and increased taxes.

Sawyer, in the major speech before the closing session of the National Association of Manufacturers' 53rd annual Congress of American Industry, said controls might have to be imposed if the military budget for the next fiscal year exceeds the current budget.

He also cautioned businessmen to consider "the inflationary effect of large profits and unreasonably high prices" and asked that big business co-operate with the small businessman.

The Commerce Chief called for a co-operative effort by all groups to end inflation and said "business has nothing to fear from such a program."

More Taxes Feared

Sawyer's reassurance apparently was aimed at those businessmen who felt that President Truman's unexpected election victory would be a signal for a renewed drive to get legislation that businessmen have opposed.

High on the list of business fears were: The threat of more taxes including the excess profits tax, restoration of price controls, and the entry of government into business in more and more fields.

Graphic evidence of business fears was the stock market decline since the election, which lopped off about $8 billion from the total market value of all shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

Earlier this week in Washington, Sawyer told newsmen President Truman had read his speech and approved it. The President plans to lay an anti-inflation program before Congress in January.

Concerning taxes, Sawyer told a dinner meeting of nearly 2,000 of the nation's leading industrialists and busiessmen that "in an inflationary period we must build up a surplus in the federal budget, to be used to help our huge national debt."

Tax Cut "Prolongs" Inflation

"The result of recent tax reductions, which were made at a time when the federal government was assuming new and extensive responsibilities for foreign aid and national defense, has been a drastic decrease in the federal cash sur-

French Plan For Ruhr Is Given To U.S.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—(AP)—France proposed a three-point plan to the United States tonight to keep the Ruhr from serving again as a German war arsenal.

The French formula would continue international controls even after occupation troops have left Germany.

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet told newsmen the plan is "also in the interest of Germany—and I want to emphasize that because we want to see Germany's economy eventually integrated into the economy of Europe."

Bonnett presented the plan in a formal note to Undersecretary of State Lovett.

Earlier this week, France had objected vigorously to a British-American program to hand over limited control of the vast Ruhr industries to the Germans. The French Assembly, mindful of the Ruhr's war-making potentialities, voted 377-181 last night to repudiate any such action.

But Lovett made it clear to newsmen in Washington yesterday that the United States—while determined to prevent a rebirth of German military might—plans to go ahead with the program of limited German management as a stimulus to Germany's postwar recovery.

Bonnet said the French government's proposals called for:

2—Denazification of management of the Ruhr industries.

"Forever Amber" Author Divorces Artie Shaw

RENO, Nev., Dec. 3. (AP)—The sixth wife of Band Leader Artie Shaw divorced him today.

She was Kathleen Winsor Herwig Shaw, author of "Forever Amber."

After a hearing of only four minutes, Judge A. J. Maestretti gave her a divorce on grounds of extreme mental cruelty.

Ex-Cop Must Pay Third Of Income To Girl, 19, He Crippled For Life

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP)—Former Rookie Policeman Wayne W. Edmondson, 22, was "sentenced" today to pay one-third of his net income for five years to a 19-year-old girl crippled for life in a night club shooting.

Edmondson was convicted November 9 of assault with a deadly weapon in the shooting of Miss Dorothy Kilmer. He already had been suspended from the police force.

District Court Judge Alexander Holtzoff gave Edmondson a five to 15 months suspended sentence and placed him on probation for five years, during which, by court order he must contribute to Miss Kilmer's support.

The girl's spinal cord was severed by a single shot from Edmondson's .38 caliber pistol which he was brandishing in the night club during an off-duty visit. While convicting on the assault charge, a district court jury found the actual shooting accidental.

Doctors have told Miss Kilmer she will never walk again.

Church Council Adopts Anti-Segregation Report

CINCINNATI, Dec. 3 (AP) — The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America went all out today for elimination or racial segregation.

In so doing, America's largest Protestant church group approved President Truman's civil rights program in principle—and then went further.

Delegates adopted a report which says in effect that it is fine to pass a law abolishing racial segregation, but what really is needed is to have every man believe in his heart that non-segregation is 100 per cent right, and practice it.

The council's newly-elected president, Bishop John S. Stamm, Harrisburg, Pa., hailed the action at a news conference.

"These are the Christian principles and the objective toward which we are striving," he said.

The council, which embraces 27 denominations with more than 28,000,000 members, reaffirmed a declaration that racial segregation is "unnecessary and undesirable." It had said that in other years, but it went all the way today by saying:

"As proof of their sincerity, the churches must work for a non-segregated church and a non-segregated society."

The report, adopted near the close of the council's 40th anniversary convention, met scattered opposition during a discussion period. However, it was adopted without a single "nay" voice vote.

The report asserted that "the flagrant violation of human rights in our generation has outraged Christian feeling.

"All of the rich gifts which God imparts to man should be available to all without distinction as to race, color, sex, birth, nationality or creed."

Microfilms Of "Secret" Data Found In Pumpkin On Chambers' Md. Farm

Committee Claims Information "Fed Out Of State Dept."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — The House Un-American Activities Committe declared tonight that a bunch of microfilms, found in a hollow pumpkin on a Maryland farm, offers conclusive evidence that national security information was "fed out of the State Department" before the war.

Rep. Mundt (R-SD), who made the announcement on behalf of the committee, said the microfilms were obtained from Whittaker Chambers, a self-described former Communist who now is a senior editor on Time magazine.

In a statement, Mundt said the copied documents were given Chambers by "a member of the Communist underground" who was not identified.

Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the committee, told reporters that Chambers was subpoenaed yesterday to produce the documents.

Then, according to Stripling's account—

Chambers took two committee agents to his farm near Westminster, Md. He led them to a spot back of the farmhouse and showed them a pumpkin, hollowed out, jack-o'-lantern fashion, but minus a face.

Chambers lifted the top off the pumpkin and fished out the microfilms, Striping said.

Mundt's Statement

Mundt's statement said:

"There is now in the possession of the committee, under 24 hour guard, microfilmed copies of documents of tremendous importance, which were removed from the offices of the State Department and turned over to Chambers for the purpose of transmittal to Russian Communist agents.

"These documents are of such startling and significant importance, and reveal such a vast network of Communist espionage within the State Department, that they far exceed anything yet brought before the committee in its 10-year history.

"These microfilms have been the object of a 10-year search by agents of the United States government and provide definite proof of one of the most extensive espionage rings in the history of the United States.

"On the basis of evidence now before the committee, it appears that conclusive proof has been established that secret documents of direct significance to our national security was fed out of the State Department by a member of the Communist underground to Whittaker Chambers, who at that time was operating as one of the Washington contacts for the Communist underground operating in America."

May Reopen Hearings

Mundt, chairman of a subcommittee, released the new information on behalf of the entire Un-American Activities group.

Te announced that he is getting in touch with other members with the aim of reopening he committee's hearings into alleged Communist espionage as soon as possible.

In one of the sensation packed sessions at last summer's hearings, Chambers testified under oath that he was a member of a prewar Red underground in this country. Chambers now is a senior editor of Time magazine, and testified he has renounced Communism.

In the course of his testimony, he named several other persons then in government as having belonged to the underground.

In the hearings last summer,

Mechanic Shot By Handlebar From Bicycle

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 3 (AP) —Andrew Frantz, 31-year-old garageman, accidentally shot himself with a bicycle handlebar. He explained today he didn't know it was loaded.

Frantz was making the handlebar into a handle for a welding torch yesterday when he realized something was inside the bar. He rested the bar on his stomach and tried to hammer the obstruction out.

It exploded, the obstruction, sheriff's deputies said, was a 16-gauge shotgun shell. He is recovering.

Attempts To Halt Berlin Anti-Red Rallies Continue

Hecklers Bounced By Meeting Guards

BERLIN, Dec. 3. — (AP)—Fighting mad Social Democrats in West Berlin tonight threw Communist invaders out of their election campaign rally and served defiant notice that they are "too tough" to bend under Red dictatorship.

The Communist hecklers, following a week-long pattern, tried to break up one of the final rallies of the powerful Social Democratic Party and bumped into hard and willing fists.

Social Democratic Party guards bounced a half dozen of the hecklers around. Then party physicians waiting at a specially-erected first aid station dressed the victims' cuts and bruises.

Use of guards by various parties to protect their meetings from street fighters dates back to pre-1933 days when Nazi and Communist strong-arm gangs fought in Berlin streets.

After order was restored tonight, Ernst Reuter, who is expected to be made mayor after next Sunday's election, cried:

"We know who our foe is but he does not know how tough we are."

Reuter accused German Communists of playing a Judas game:

"They have sold out their own people for 30 pieces of silver." Then he shouted:

"The airlift is working day and night, proof that the world will not desert us. We will hold out until that day when this power retreats which does not belong on European soil. Some day this dictatorship will fail and then freedom will reign also on the other (Russian) side of the Brandenburg Gate and the Red flag will be supplanted by the German flag."

Reuter addressed the biggest of a dozen campaign meetings in the three western sectors, climaxing a drive to bring out the heaviest vote possible Sunday as a repudiation of the Communists.

The Communist-dominated Social Unity Party (SED) is boycotting the election which was scheduled under the city constitution approved by all four occupying powers. Soviet authorities, however, have banned voting in the eastern sector Sunday. They have recognized a Communist rump regime elected by a show of hands at a mass meeting in East Berlin this week as "the only legal organ of the city administration."

The Social Democrats, warned by the conduct of Communist rowdies at earlier rallies, were ready tonight even though the meeting was held in front of the Soviet-controlled Radio Berlin in the British sector. As soon as the hecklers opened up, Socialist guards grabbed them and started swinging. The treatment dished out to a half dozen or so took the starch out of the others who shut up immediately.

Outside, sporadic punching ensued. The outnumbered Communists fled to the safety of the radio station where Russian soldiers are on guard.

Actress Rita Hayworth Suspended By Columbia

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3. (AP)—Rita Hayworth has been suspended from her $248,000 a year acting job for "refusal to report for work," Columbia Pictures announced today.

The auburn-haired screen siren was due to appear at the studio yesterday to begin a new film, "Lone Hanson." When she did not answer the call, Rita was placed on suspension.

Robot Ear Hears Phone Ring And Turns On Light

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 3—(AP)—A new robot ear that hears the phone ring and turns on the light was shown to doctors at the American Medical Association meeting today.

It is used to save fumbling in the dark to reach a phone beside the bed, or stumbling to get to a phone somewhere else.

The ear is also used when no one is at home to turn on the light outside the front door. When the householder gets ready to go home, he calls his house and the ear turns on the light. No one needs to answer the phone.

The robot is a box on which the telephone is placed. When the phone rings, the noise of the bell vibrates a salt crystal in the box. The vibration makes electricity flow in the salt, and the current is amplified to turn the light switch. The box and phone are set in the circuit with the light to be turned on. In this way the ear can be used to light any lamp in the house, or outside.

The device comes from wartime submarine and surface ship detection by sound. Nothing except the rate of vibration of a phone bell affects this ear.

Besides doctors, FBI men have been getting these ears because they are on call 24 hours of the day. Undertakers have gotten them because more people seem to die at night. The new device is made by a Cleveland firm (the Fone-Lite Division of the Omega Safety Razor Company) and in that city newspaper reporters have been buying the ears.

West Coast Dock Strike Ends; New Hitch Develops

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 3. (AP)—The West Coast maritime strike ended officially at noon today. But there was no certainty that long-idled ships would sail in the immediate future.

No sooner did the last of the striking CIO and independent unions come to terms in their 93-day strike than a new maritime hitch developed in demands of the non-striking AFL Sailors Union of the Pacific.

Harry Lundeberg, head of the AFL-SUP, announced his men would sail no ships unless certain jurisdictional guarantees were acknowledged and contract wage provisions met.

Truman Departs For Norfolk, Va.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — President Truman left tonight by yacht for Norfolk, Va., for a week-end ceremony aboard the battleship Missouri, named after his home state.

The President and his party left Washington aboard the Williamsburg at 10:26 p. m. Eastern Standard Time. A short time before, Mr. Truman and his daughter Margaret had been guests of honor at a father-and-daughter dinner at the National Press Club.

At the dinner, the President and Margaret brought down the house with a piano duet which she called "The Jenny Lind Polka" which "Daddy taught me when I was about ten."

She added, to much laughter, that she did not believe they had played it since.

Miss Truman, a singer, explained: "I do belong to a union, so I got special dispensation to do this with a non-union member."

The President and his party are scheduled to arrive at the Norfolk Naval Station at about 12:30 p. m. tomorrow. Shortly afterward Mr. Truman will take part in the presentation of a 281-piece silver service to the historic "Mighty Mo," the 45,000-ton battleship on which the Japanese surrender papers were signed in Tokyo Bay in 1945.

The $10,000 set of silverware is the gift of the State of Missouri. The money was appropriated by the State Legislature.

Wholesale Prices Rise

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — (AP) — Wholesale prices rose one-tenth of one per cent during the week ended November 30, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

This put the wholesale price index at 165.1 per cent of the 1926 average. This is one-half of a per cent higher than four weeks ago and 2.5 per cent higher than the comparable week in 1947.

last month: If military spending runs much over $15,000,000,000, then it may become necessary to raise taxes and return to federal controls.

Some of those arguing against the $15,000,000,000 ceiling say they know it must mean higher taxes, but they add that limits on military spending would risk greater costs, perhaps even the tremendous cost of war.

They say the United States will be weakened in its peace-keeping role if the proposed 70-group Air Force has to be slashed, and if the Navy has to reduce its Mediterranean strength, for example.

The Army already has announced plans to reduce draft calls, pleading insufficient funds.

Two Given Jail Terms For Income Tax Evasion

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3—(AP)—The crackdown on state income tax evaders brought its first prison sentences today.

Walter Adams, a married electrician with no children, and Murray Graham Adair, a married salesman with one other dependent, were sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $200 apiece.

"There is a widespread attitude," said Judge Herman M. Moser, "that you dare not overlook taxes due to Uncle Sam but you can ignore taxes due the State of Maryland.

"There is no basis for such a feeling.

"This court has to regard those who try to cheat and defraud the State of Maryland in the same light as the government of the United States regards income tax violators.

"That means a sentence as well as a fine."

Chambers charged — and Alger Hiss vehemently denied — that Hiss belonged to a "Communist apparatus" which Chambers said operated in Washington during the 1930s.

Hiss now is president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. He once was a high official of the State Department, on a policy-making level. He was secretary-general of the conference that founded the United Nations.

Hiss brought a $75,000 damage suit against Chambers after the latter repeated some of his accusations over the radio without the protection granted at congressional hearings.

Documents Dated Before 1938

Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the committee, said that some of the microfilmed documents reported by Mundt, if placed side by side with coded originals, would have permitted cracking a United States code.

He told reporters also that none of the documents date beyond 1938, and that some were marked "strictly confidential" which means top secret.

He said one, for example, was a copy of a diagram of a technical instrument with instructions for its use.

Another Stripling said, was addressed to the Secretary of State from Paris and signed "Bullitt." William C. Bullitt for some years served as ambassador to various countries.

Stripling said this message dealt with a conversation Bullitt had with a high Chinese official, formerly in Moscow, regarding the prospects of Russia entering the Chinese-Japanese war.

Another had a heading which showed it had been handed to the German ambassador "by Mr. Welles." Sumner Welles formerly was Under-secretary of State.

Inter-American Treaty In Effect

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP) — A defense pact designed to muster the combined strength of the American republics against any aggressor went into force today.

Secretary of State Marshall said the action "will be noted with interest far beyond the American continent."

The agreement for collective action in case of attack was drafted last year at Rio De Janeiro.

It became effective today when Costa Rica gave the pact its necessary two-thirds deposit of ratifications. She was 14th out of 21 nations to act.

The inter-American treaty, based on the United Nations Charter, provides;

1. Immediate military assistance by all of the American states to any member attacked by another nation in this hemisphere. First action would be a "cease fire" order.

2. If a member is attacked by an outside power, all the treaty signatories will hold immediate consultations to decide what steps are needed to safeguard the hemisphere.

The new world security zone extends from the North to the South Pole, and includes Greenland.

Twenty-one New World nations are involved. The way was left open for Canada to join the Rio pact, but so far it has shown no inclination to do so. However. Canada figures in the Atlantic union plans.

The pallium is a circular band of white wool worn only by popes and archbishops.

Mother Who Kidnaped Tot Gets Suspended Sentence

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3. (AP)—A 44-year-old mother of eight children received a suspended 10-year prison sentence today for kidnaping a baby after her illusion that she was pregnant collapsed.

plus, and this reduction in turn has helped to prolong inflation through 1948," he said.

Sawyer told of a voluntary business-government program, in effect for the past year, under which certain products were allocated to key industries in serious short supply.

"This program," Sawyer said, "has given us valuable experience which will make easier the setting up of an expanded program of materials controls if this should prove to be necessary."

At a time when basic industries are producing at or near maximum production, and shortages still exist, the Commerce chief said "it seems likely that an allocation program may be needed for some time. This will be even more true if military expenditures are increased."

Two Convicts Die In Gas Chamber

SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Dec. 3 (AP) —The government executed two Alcatraz Prison convicts in a rented gas chamber today.

Strapped in seats side by side, Sam Shockley, 36, Oklahoma kidnaper, and Miran Thompson, 31, Texas murderer, died together in the little apple green chamber.

They paid the penalty for the murder of Guard William A. Miller, killed during the abortive revolt at Alcatraz in May, 1946. Another guard and three convicts were shot to death in that wild outburst. No one escaped from "The Rock" and Shockley and Thompson finally were given death sentences for their participation.

For months they had been in adjoining cells in San Quentin Prison—while Thompson exhausted legal appeals. They did not converse through the cell bars, each saying the other was "crazy."

As Shockley was led through the gas chamber door, he turned and seemed to sneer or spit at the guards.

Then the black-haired Thompson was brought in and guards quickly began applying straps.

At this point Thompson broke his long silence and whispered something to Shockley.

Someone tripped a lever which started the generation of gas. A faint mist quickly arose.

Thompson, a tight smile on his lips, got red in the face and slumped forward. Shockley bent forward and remained in that position.

Alliance Draft Arrives

The draft was worked out by the five Western European Union nations for negotiation with the United States and Canada.

Slain Negro's Widow Promised Protection

ATLANTA, Dec. 3 (AP) — Gov. Herman Talmadge today promised the widow of Robert Mallard, murdered negro, full protection by Georgia's military and police forces if she swears out warrants for the slayers.

Amy James Mallard, the widow, has been in hiding in Savannah since her husband was shot and killed near Lyons, Ga., November 20. She told Toombs County officers a band of robed white men stopped the car in which she and her husband and two other negroes were riding and shot Mallard.

Georgia officers declined to swear out warrants because they said insufficient evidence had been produced, although the widow named two white men as the killers. She said she had not returned to Lyons to swear out warrants because she was afraid of being lynched.

Truman Departs For Norfolk, Va.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 (AP) — President Truman left tonight by yacht for Norfolk, Va., for a week-end ceremony aboard the battleship Missouri, named after his home state.

The President and his party left Washington aboard the Williamsburg at 10:26 p. m. Eastern Standard Time. A short time before, Mr. Truman and his daughter Margaret had been guests of honor at a father-and-daughter dinner at the National Press Club.

At the dinner, the President and Margaret brought down the house with a piano duet which she called "The Jenny Lind Polka" which "Daddy taught me when I was about ten."

She added, to much laughter, that she did not believe they had played it since.

Miss Truman, a singer, explained: "I do belong to a union, so I got special dispensation to do this with a non-union member."

The President and his party are scheduled to arrive at the Norfolk Naval Station at about 12:30 p. m. tomorrow. Shortly afterward Mr. Truman will take part in the presentation of a 281-piece silver service to the historic "Mighty Mo," the 45,000-ton battleship on which the Japanese surrender papers were signed in Tokyo Bay in 1945.

The $10,000 set of silverware is the gift of the State of Missouri. The money was appropriated by the State Legislature.

Wholesale Prices Rise

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. — (AP) — Wholesale prices rose one-tenth of one per cent during the week ended November 30, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today.

This put the wholesale price index at 165.1 per cent of the 1926 average. This is one-half of a per cent higher than four weeks ago and 2.5 per cent higher than the comparable week in 1947.

Truman Silences

last month: If military spending runs much over $15,000,000,000, then it may become necessary to raise taxes and return to federal controls.

Some of those arguing against the $15,000,000,000 ceiling say they know it must mean higher taxes, but they add that limits on military spending would risk greater costs, perhaps even the tremendous cost of war.

They say the United States will be weakened in its peace-keeping role if the proposed 70-group Air Force has to be slashed, and if the Navy has to reduce its Mediterranean strength, for example.

The Army already has announced plans to reduce draft calls, pleading insufficient funds.

Two Given Jail Terms For Income Tax Evasion

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3—(AP)—The crackdown on state income tax evaders brought its first prison sentences today.

Walter Adams, a married electrician with no children, and Murray Graham Adair, a married salesman with one other dependent, were sentenced to 30 days in jail and fined $200 apiece.

"There is a widespread attitude," said Judge Herman M. Moser, "that you dare not overlook taxes due to Uncle Sam but you can ignore taxes due the State of Maryland.

"There is no basis for such a feeling.

"This court has to regard those who try to cheat and defraud the State of Maryland in the same light as the government of the United States regards income tax violators.

"That means a sentence as well as a fine."

Microfilms Of

Chambers charged — and Alger Hiss vehemently denied — that Hiss belonged to a "Communist apparatus" which Chambers said operated in Washington during the 1930s.

Hiss now is president of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace. He once was a high official of the State Department, on a policy-making level. He was secretary-general of the conference that founded the United Nations.

Hiss brought a $75,000 damage suit against Chambers after the latter repeated some of his accusations over the radio without the protection granted at congressional hearings.

Documents Dated Before 1938

Robert E. Stripling, chief investigator for the committee, said that some of the microfilmed documents reported by Mundt, if placed side by side with coded originals, would have permitted cracking a United States code.

He told reporters also that none of the documents date beyond 1938, and that some were marked "strictly confidential" which means top secret.

He said one, for example, was a copy of a diagram of a technical instrument with instructions for its use.

Another Stripling said, was addressed to the Secretary of State from Paris and signed "Bullitt." William C. Bullitt for some years served as ambassador to various countries.

Stripling said this message dealt with a conversation Bullitt had with a high Chinese official, formerly in Moscow, regarding the prospects of Russia entering the Chinese-Japanese war.

Another had a heading which showed it had been handed to the German ambassador "by Mr. Welles." Sumner Welles formerly was Under-secretary of State.

Inter-American Treaty In Effect

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP) — A defense pact designed to muster the combined strength of the American republics against any aggressor went into force today.

Secretary of State Marshall said the action "will be noted with interest far beyond the American continent."

The agreement for collective action in case of attack was drafted last year at Rio De Janeiro.

It became effective today when Costa Rica gave the pact its necessary two-thirds deposit of ratifications. She was 14th out of 21 nations to act.

The inter-American treaty, based on the United Nations Charter, provides:

1. Immediate military assistance by all of the American states to any member attacked by another nation in this hemisphere. First action would be a "cease fire" order.

2. If a member is attacked by an outside power, all the treaty signatories will hold immediate consultations to decide what steps are needed to safeguard the hemisphere.

The new world security zone extends from the North to the South Pole, and includes Greenland.

Twenty-one New World nations are involved. The way was left open for Canada to join the Rio pact, but so far it has shown no inclination to do so. However, Canada figures in the Atlantic union plans.

Abdullah Move Seen

BEIRUT, Lebanon, Dec. 3. (AP)—Reports from Amman today said King Abdullah, of Trans-Jordan, is expected to proclaim himself monarch of Palestine and Trans-Jordan in a few days.

The Egyptians and early Greeks wrote with a stylus, a pointed instrument of wood, ivory or metal.

Archbishop Keough To Be Invested With Pallium

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3. (AP)—Archbishop Keough will be invested with the pallium of an archbishop Monday by the Apolistic delegate, the Most Reverend Amleto G. Cigognani, D. D.

It will be the first ceremony of its kind in the Baltimore Cathedral since Cardinal Gibbons received the pallium 71 years ago.

The pallium is a circular band of white wool worn only by popes and archbishops.

Mother Who Kidnaped Tot Gets Suspended Sentence

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3. (AP)—A 44-year-old mother of eight children received a suspended 10-year prison sentence today for kidnaping a baby after her illusion that she was pregnant collapsed.

Mrs. Lena Shiflett, who pleaded guilty to snatching 11-week-old Jo Anne Mezzanotte from her carriage last October 16, was released on probation to undergo psychiatric treatment.

Sawyer Hints

plus, and this reduction in turn has helped to prolong inflation through 1948," he said.

Sawyer told of a voluntary business-government program, in effect for the past year, under which certain products were allocated to key industries in serious short supply.

"This program," Sawyer said, "has given us valuable experience which will make easier the setting up of an expanded program of materials controls if this should prove to be necessary."

At a time when basic industries are producing at or near maximum production, and shortages still exist, the Commerce chief said "it seems likely that an allocation program may be needed for some time. This will be even more true if military expenditures are increased."

Two Convicts Die In Gas Chamber

SAN QUENTIN, Calif., Dec. 3 (AP) —The government executed two Alcatraz Prison convicts in a rented gas chamber today.

Strapped in seats side by side, Sam Shockley, 36, Oklahoma kidnaper, and Miran Thompson, 31, Texas murderer, died together in the little apple green chamber.

They paid the penalty for the murder of Guard William A. Miller, killed during the abortive revolt at Alcatraz in May, 1946. Another guard and three convicts were shot to death in that wild outburst. No one escaped from "The Rock" and Shockley and Thompson finally were given death sentences for their participation.

For months they had been in adjoining cells in San Quentin Prison—while Thompson exhausted legal appeals. They did not converse through the cell bars, each saying the other was "crazy."

As Shockley was led through the gas chamber door, he turned and seemed to sneer or spit at the guards.

Then the black-haired Thompson was brought in and guards quickly began applying straps.

At this point Thompson broke his long silence and whispered something to Shockley.

Someone tripped a lever which started the generation of gas. A faint mist quickly arose.

Thompson, a tight smile on his lips, got red in the face and slumped forward. Shockley bent forward and remained in that position.

Alliance Draft Arrives

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3. (AP)—The British Embassy today received from London the proposed draft of a North Atlantic military alliance.

The draft was worked out by the five Western European Union nations for negotiation with the United States and Canada.

Slain Negro's Widow Promised Protection

ATLANTA, Dec. 3 (AP) — Gov. Herman Talmadge today promised the widow of Robert Mallard, murdered negro, full protection by Georgia's military and police forces if she swears out warrants for the slayers.

Amy James Mallard, the widow, has been in hiding in Savannah since her husband was shot and killed near Lyons, Ga., November 20. She told Toombs County officers a band of robed white men stopped the car in which she and her husband and two other negroes were riding and shot Mallard.

Georgia officers declined to swear out warrants because they said insufficient evidence had been produced, although the widow named two white men as the killers. She said she had not returned to Lyons to swear out warrants because she was afraid of being lynched.

Treat That Hen Right, She's A Lady!

OMAHA — (AP) — A hen is a lady and you'd better treat her like one, according to Clarence Fouts, Omaha poultry store manager. Knock before entering a lady chicken's quarters just as you would knock before entering any other lady's room, he recommends.

Fouts said that's the way to avoid trouble when dealing with hens. His comment was in reply to a woman newspaper reader who complained, in a letter to the "Omaha World-Herald", about the noisiness and bad behavior of her hens. As Fouts puts it: "If you were a lady and someone walked into your room without knocking, what would you do? You'd probably fly into the air, flap your arms and tell the intruder to leave."

Training of homing pigeons starts when they are about four weeks old.

MIRROR Of Your MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

Can you trust a person children "take to"?

Answer: On the whole, yes, though it isn't always because he loves children so much—for it may not be the people who are fondest of them that children or animals "make up to." Unless he is actively discouraged, any child will gravitate toward a person who appears secure and free from nervous tension because such a person makes him feel safe. And because a person who is at peace with himself is apt to be more dependable than one who is torn by inner conflicts, anyone whom children "take to" probably is trustworthy.

If you're shy, do others realize it?

Answer: Rarely—at least, unless you reveal your shyness in some obvious way like trembling or blushing. A shy person is much more apt to appear reserved or "stuck up," and strangely enough it is his fellow-sufferers who are most apt to think this. If you are lacking in self-confidence and meet someone who seems chilly and stand-offish, try to realize that it is probably because he feels the same way that you do. He is too much worried about the impression he is making to guess you're as scared as he is.

Will your mind start to slow down at fifty?

Answer: Not unless you've let your thinking powers atrophy from disuse. "A man is at his best in his fifties," says Dr. Edward L. Bortz, President of the American Medical Association, while in "You Are Younger Than You Think," Dr. Martin Gumpert asserts that "A normal person is at his best mental period between forty and seventy." The anxiety we feel at being forced to realize that we are less vigorous physically than we have been may be so intense that we fail to realize that our minds are as strong as ever.

Try And Stop Me

The late D. W. Griffith was fond of telling people that in the big Civil War battle scenes of his "The Birth of a Nation" he employed 50,000 extras. When people pointed out that this must have cost him a half million dollars a day for over a hundred days, and marveled "How did you stay solvent?" Griffith would chuckle and say, "I worked out an infallible system. Our soldiers used real bullets."

Tallulah Bankhead, tourning in Noel Coward's museum piece, "Private Lives," was kept awake one night by a persistent rattle against her window pane. She discovered it to be a piece of metal on the end of a wire, and angrily drew it inside and tucked it under her pillow. A few moments later she was sleeping the sleep of the innocent. The next morning she was horrified to discover that the metal piece under her pillow was the LIGHTNING CONDUCTOR.

KEYSER — "Save The Children Federation" was the topic of an address given B. A. G. Springer, assistant county school superintendent, at a meeting of Keyser Lions Club Thursday evening.

Plans were made for the Lions Club to present its annual Minstrel Show in February. Half of the proceeds will be given to the Infantile Paralysis Fund. Arnet Swisher, Keyser High School instructor, will direct the show.

She discovered it to be a piece of metal on the end of a wire, and angrily drew it inside and tucked it under her pillow. A few moments later she was sleeping the sleep of the innocent. The next morning she was horrified to discover that the metal piece under her pillow was the LIGHTNING CONDUCTOR.

Keyser Lions Plan Minstrel In February

KEYSER — "Save The Children Federation" was the topic of an address given B. A. G. Springer, assistant county school superintendent, at a meeting of Keyser Lions Club Thursday evening.

Plans were made for the Lions Club to present its annual Minstrel Show in February. Half of the proceeds will be given to the Infantile Paralysis Fund. Arnet Swisher, Keyser High School instructor, will direct the show.

Wife Of Generalissimo Comes To Plead For China

It's not diplomatic protocol and it will cause some frowns in the State Department, but the flying visit of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek to the United States is a hopeful development in China's crisis.

If any individual can present the case for China aid to the American government and people that person is the wife of the Generalissimo. Mme. Chiang has lived for years in the United States. She received her higher education at Wellesly. She is a devout Christian and speaks English like a native American. Since before 1927, when Chiang broke with the Communists and set out to build up an independent China, she has been actively at her husband's side. She knows at first hand the devious ins and outs of China's domestic and foreign policy, and she has seen at close-range the menace of Chinese Communism.

One reason given for our hesitancy to increase aid in any appreciable amount is based on the claim, as Mark Sullivan cites in his column elsewhere on this page today, that the present government of China is inefficient and corrupt. But it is no different today than it was during the war when we approved it and gave it immediate aid. The United States has allotted more than $2,000,000,000 to China since VJ-Day, and conditions in Nanking have not changed.

At Yalta the United States betrayed pledges to Chiang at Ciro by giving Russia vital footholds in Manchuria and, in effect, encouraging a working alliance between Moscow and the Chinese Communists.

Apparently it is now believed in Washington that China can be saved from Communism only by a major military effort, which world conditions do not permit. Thus, China and the West seem destined to lose by default. Perhaps the defeat was inevitable from the start. But one reason for the approaching catastrophe, perhaps, is that a State Department which found it easy to swallow Marshal Tito could not stomach Chiang Kai-shek.

Mme. Chiang arrives here at a grave moment in her country's history—and a moment of critical decision in American history. The problem of China is monumental. Official Washington is considering a plan to give China prompt military and economic aid, on a scale of perhaps half a billion dollars a year, to be administered by 10,000 non-fighting American officers and enlisted men.

We do not know whether that plan will go through, or whether it would meet the collossal needs of China if it did. We doubt it. Such an amount would, in the views of some, be like throwing good money after bad. The Administration has intimated that future monetary aid may be very little in comparison to the help China feels is necessary. But the fact that it is even being discussed represents a welcome change from the attitude of folded hands in Washington, and from the nonsensical hopes of some men in the State Department that "maybe everything will be all right in China if the Reds form a coalition with 'liberal' Chinese."

Mme. Chiang has the information and the eloquence to combat that delusion, which would turn all Southeast Asia into another Soviet satellite camp.

Actions, Not Words, Really Count In Berlin

Readers of the news from Paris and Berlin are entitled to a feeling of bewilderment in trying to follow the meanderings of the Berlin crisis. One day they learn from Paris that Russia now looks with favor on the "neutral plan" to have the Berlin blockade raised simultaneously with restoration of the Soviet mark in the Berlin area. The next day they read that Berlin Communists under encouragement and protection of the Russian military, have set up a puppet regime in the Soviet zone of the city. This, of course, anticipates an anti-Communist victory in the municipal elections in the Western zones tomorrow. Such a formal split of the city would, in practice, rule out any co-operative use of the new currency.

It is natural to conclude from such contradictory moves that there is no consistency in Russia's Berlin policy. There is, however, a firm consistency beneath the varying show of words. The consistent Soviet aim is to gain control of Berlin as a step toward communizing all Germany. Russia's current gestures toward an agreement at Paris means no more than Russia's scheme to have all Allied troops withdrawn from Germany—after German pro-Communist troops and police have been trained to take over when the Western occupation forces have been withdrawn.

Here is the reality which the Allied peoples will ignore at their peril. Soviet Russian words are nothing. Like these occasional gestures toward compromise at Paris, they are mere camouflage. What counts is not what Russia says but what she does. The consistent Kremlin policy in Berlin has been a steady and relentless pressure toward the West.

December, The One Month Of Drama

In a good melodrama, things get tough for people, and you wonder how they will ever make out. The farm mortgage is about to be foreclosed. Indians are circling the little fort on the lone prairie. Then the unexpected happens: The skinflint creditor is pulled out of the creek by the farmer's son, and suffers a change of heart. From some Fort the cavalry emerge with swinging sabers. All's well that ends well.

That's the way with December. Or at least, if things do not immediately end well, they get a headstart in that direction. For the next three weeks we shall witness a grim approach. Whether or not there is snow and deepening cold, everybody notes the shortening days, the encroaching dark. Comes Winter, and the drama's denouement. For the moment, explains the dictionary, the receding sun "apparently stands still in its course." Thinking it over? Anyway, it turns around and starts north. Thus passes the solstice, the paradox of nature. "If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind? one asks. The answer is No, or not too far behind.

However stiff the siege that lies ahead, next month the redbirds will be singing again.

Jet-powered motorcars of the future will travel 500 miles an hour, it is predicted. Junior's jalopy is to have a rival at last.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

The Skin and the Teeth

Once in a while, chronic skin diseases are due to infected teeth and tonsils and, unless nests of bacteria are removed, the lesions continue. This is not a common occurrence but several instances of the combination have been reported in medical journals; therefore, the possibility should not be neglected.

Dr. Van Dellen

Andrews and his colleagues, of the Presbyterian Hospital in New York, told of a 71 year old man who had been plagued for five years with pustular rash on the nose and cheeks. Treatment during this period had been unsuccessful except that on one occasion a sulfonamide ointment helped temporarily. X-rays of his teeth, which had not been checked in many years, revealed the presence of abscesses at the roots of four. Three weeks after these teeth were extracted the facial eruption disappeared and has never returned.

In this case, the effect was dramatic and there is no doubt that a relationship exists between the teeth and the blemishes. While the physicians had no way of knowing beforehand that the plan would work so well, the patient had nothing to lose and everything to gain. His infected molars were a detriment to his health in general; it would have been a different story had his teeth been normal and the extractions were suggested on a theoretical basis.

Similar experiences also have been recorded in victims of a form of dermatitis partial to the palms of the hands and soles of the feet (pustular bacterids). In this disturbance, tiny blisters break out over the involved areas associated with itching and occasional swelling and pain. Each day, fresh eruptions appear and the old ones have a tendency to shrivel and dry up. Ultimately, the dermatitis vanishes, leaving the surface dry, shiny, and scaly but recurrences are common and some afflicted individuals suffer year after year without obtaining relief. In many, a focal infection is responsible and, when detected and eliminated, the skin disturbance fades away.

In one instance the victim was scarcely able to walk because of a pustular outbreak on both soles of the feet. X-rays of the teeth showed a questionable infection but hardly enough to warrant extraction. Later, it was found that the tonsils were small and scarred—a sign that they had been infected on numerous occasions. A needle was inserted in one of them and considerable pus obtained. After tonsillectomy, the skin improved quickly and has remained clear.

Eczema on the ankles and feet of older persons sometimes is traceable to abscessed teeth. The same can be said of women who develop patches of baldness on the scalp; these authors describe several cases in which hair grew back after focal infections were eradicated. The kinship is also in children; and now and then youngsters with eczema seem to be bothered during teething. From this, it is obvious that teeth play a role in certain skin diseases; dead and broken structures must be viewed with the same suspicion as abscessed teeth.

State Department Responsible for Venezuelan Coup; Department's Double-Dealing Flabbergasts Latin America; Labor Unions Taken By Surprise

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—The latest Latin-American military coup, which overthrew the government of popular President Romulo Gallegos in Venezuela, can be laid directly on the doorstep of the State Department.

On Oct. 30, less than twenty-four hours after a similar army uprising had started in Peru, the State Department formally agreed to hold joint consultation with Ecuador, Colombia, Venezuela and Chile before any of them would decide whether to recognize the new Peruvian regime.

A promise to this effect was given personally by Paul Daniels, chief of the State Department's American Republics Division. The ambassadors of the four countries named above, who talked to him, immediately transmitted this word to their respective capitals.

But three days later, without any warning to these governments, the United States announced that it would "continue normal relations" with the Peruvian military junta. Our Latin-American neighbors were too flabbergasted to speak.

What has now happened in Venezuela—and will soon take place in other Latin-American republics—is the direct product of this incredible State Department double-dealing. Militarists, hungry for power all over the hemisphere, in effect have been given the green light by Washington.

The political crisis in Venezuela, which began to shape up some weeks ago, had already been solved, more or less to everyone's satisfaction, when suddenly the army moved in.

How The Military Operated

Here is the inside story of just how and why they operated.

President Gallegos, elected by the overwhelming majority of 72 per cent of the votes, was a personal friend of President Truman, had traveled with him last spring to Bolivar, Mo. A few weeks ago Gallegos had refused to be bluffed by an ultimatum from the opposition COPEI (Conservative) Party, supported by half a dozen top army officers, that he reorganize the Cabinet and give half the Cabinet posts to COPEI.

Gallegos flatly refused, but did offer COPEI two portfolios, with two others going to independents. (His Cabinet since taking office last February had been composed exclusively of men from his own party, Accion Democratica.)

At the same time, President Gallegos made two other moves: 1, he had labor unions throughout the country advised as to what was brewing; 2 he cabled Col. Mario Vargas, Inspector-General of the Army, to come home from Serenac Lake, N. Y., where he was resting.

Organized labor, led by the powerful oil workers' union, promptly issued a manifesto saying that 300,000 workers would back Gallegos "by any means the circumstances may require." And Col. Vargas, supposedly loyal to the government, arrived in Caracas Nov. 23.

State Department's Reversal

He went at once to consult with the President. By then, even the COPEI leaders thought themselves defeated and were prepared to accept Gallegos' compromise offer. But the fatal moment for the administration came when Col. Vargas, after leaving Gallegos' office, went to consult with fellow army officers.

The first thing they told him (which Vargas hadn't known) was that the U. S. State Department had turned its back on Gallegos in the Peruvian question and, after promising him joint consultation, had proceeded to recognize the Peruvian dictatorship. This, they argued, showed Washington's lack of confidence in the Gallegos regime and also its passive willingness to see the military take over wherever leftists were too strong.

The military men told Vargas that Communist labor leaders now controlled Gallegos. They also argued that after Jan. 20, when Truman's second administration was in office, it might be harder to get an army coup recognized in Venezuela.

Col. Vargas went back to see President Gallegos that evening and asked him if this version of the way Washington handled the Peruvian issue was true. When the President confirmed it, Vargas told him frankly that he could no longer support the government.

One hour later, Vargas was with other army brass, planning the coup. It came off smoothly thanks largely to the general belief throughout Venezuela that the earlier COPEI crisis was over. Before Venezuelan labor unions had a chance to rally anywhere, they found themselves facing tanks and machine guns at every corner.

Argentina's Joker

When the State Department announced it was maintaining relations with the Peruvian dictatorship, it cited the resolution adopted at the Bogota Conference last April, on "continuity of diplomatic relations." Most people didn't know it but that little joker was Argentina's baby. President Peron wanted it adopted and we blandly gave our blessing, despite strong protests to U. S. delegates from the diplomats of five other countries.

Leaving aside the doubtful wisdom of our support for the Peron resolution, Latin-American diplomats are now asking two very tough questions:

1. If we intended to adhere strictly to the Peron resolution, why did we promise Venezuela, Chile, Colombia and Ecuador to consult with them before recognizing the Peruvian dictatorship?

2. Having given our word, why did we break it three days later?

Note—The fall of President Gallegos is a double blow to American prestige. Not only did he travel with Truman to Bolivar, Mo., to dedicate a monument to Simon Bolivar, but he was wined and dined in the United States as one of our best Latin-American friends. Many Latins attribute the rise of Latin dictators to the Forrestal plan of sending U. S. arms to Latin-American armies. The more arms we send them, the stronger the military become.

Much Current Awareness Of What China's Fall Would Mean

By MARK SULLIVAN

Because of the Communist advance in China, and the presence in Washington of the wife of the head of the Chinese government Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, to ask aid, there is much current awareness of what the fall of China would mean to us. But the public awareness is short of the tragedy of the facts. And as the tragedy confronts us there is a disturbing development, a tendency to minimize it, to say in effect, "Oh, well, maybe it won't be so bad after all."

For a truer estimate, go back to what was recognized before the tragedy became imminent. This was that the fall of China to Communism and Russia would be a concrete and extreme calamity to us, both as an individual nation and in our role of spearhead of the free nations resisting the Russian attempt to communize the world. A statement of this is in a recent book, "China the Land and the People" by Gerald F. Winfield:

"Our stake in Asia has now become a matter of the survival of our democracy . . . even our very existence as a free people . . . The outcome of China's conflict may determine the fate of the human race in the second half of the twentieth century."

Judgment corresponding to that has been held by official American authorities. The head of our air forces in China during the recent war, Brigadier General Claire Chennault, writing about the strategy of the Communist leaders, said: "The domination of China is one of the strategical essentials necessary . . . before they can feel safe in making war on the world." A report of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs said that success by the Communists in taking over China would result in "one Soviet-dominated world." There were many expressions of corresponding judgments of what would follow, some going into details, including Communist domination of all Eastern and Southeastern Asia, thereby making our position as to the Philippines and Japan perhaps untenable. About the over-all consequences of Communist victory in China, there was verification from the head of the Communist Party in America, William Z. Foster, who in 1945 said: "The war in China is the key to all problems of the international front . . ."

"Ifs" On Verge Of Becoming "Is"

These "ifs" are now on the verge of becoming "is". In this imminence arises a disquieting kind of optimism, accompanied by self-excuse for not giving to China the amount of aid its government needs and pleads for. Much talk goes out of Washington to the effect that the present government of China is inefficient and corrupt. But it is the same government under the same head that China had during the war, in the pressure and atmosphere of which we approved it and gave it immense aid. We shrink from facing the fact that by our aid to China during the war we gave it reason to expect the aid it now asks for. And the fact that we implicitly promised aid, in the broad general statement President Truman made in March, 1947, when we went to the rescue of Greece: ". . . It must be the policy of the United States to support free peoples who are resisting attempted subjugation by armed minorities or by outside pressure."

The true reason we are not likely to give China the amount of aid its government pleads for is that we are faced by a dilemma. We have committed ourselves to giving immense aid, economic and military, to the countries of Western Europe against the prong of Communist advance on that continent. To add to this commitment one of corresponding magnitude to resist the Communist advance on the Asiatic continent would be to spread our strength dangerously thin.

Perhaps Choice Is Tenable

Perhaps the choice which circumstances force upon us is tenable. In Europe the stake we defend is a group of countries which with us make up the greatest area of industrial and economic strength in the world. In China the stake is five hundred million people, not economically or industrially advanced. Probably the stake in Europe is at present the one most imperatively calling for all-out defense. In any event we are committed to it. Economic aid to Western Europe is already under way, and we are in process, through the planned North Atlantic Alliance, of committing ourselves, with Canada and some ten Western European countries, to military defense of a vast area stretching from the border where northern Norway faces Russia to the border where Alaska faces Russia across the Bering Sea.

Nevertheless, loss of China, or of Chinese confidence in us, would recall uncomfortably a judgment uttered nearly fifty years ago by John Hay, then our Secretary of State: "Whoever understands that mighty empire . . . has a key to world politics for the next 500 years."

Truman Would Place Lobbyists In Groups To Meet His Desires

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 — President Truman was in a jocular mood when he met the Washington correspondents on Thursday—so much so that serious questions of government seemed at times to be treated rather lightly.

Thus the President was asked whether the proposed restriction on "lobbyists" might become an infringement on the right of petition guaranteed by the Constitution. He said anyone who raised that issue was wrong. He stated that there was a difference between a paid lobbyist and a citizen who wrote to Congress or urged something in the public interest. Here is how the United Press described the reply:

"The Chief Executive separated spokesmen for what he seemed to regard as legitimate causes and those he called paid lobbyists. He said paid lobbyists constituted another thing and he was against them.

"Asked how he would regard lobbyists who worked in behalf of his program, Mr. Truman with a broad grin said that was a different matter—that these were citizens appearing in the public interest, and he promised that anything requested by his Administration would be in the public interest."

Would Give Comfort To Moscow

Obviously the phrase "with a broad grin" was intended to convey the idea that Mr. Truman was joking. It is best to interpret such an extreme statement as having been made in lighter vein. Read seriously, it would give considerable comfort to the Moscow press where totalitarianism is practiced on exactly that same basis. If the cause is in the "public interest"—and the party in power decides what is or is not in the public interest—then there can be discussion and even petition to the government. But if it's an opposition viewpoint, it is squelched.

But presumably Mr. Truman was only joking. For he knows better than anybody else outside of Congress that paid lobbyists are employed by worthy as well as unworthy causes. He certainly did not mean to imply that paid lobbying was improper and not in the public interest. There are paid lobbyists for labor organizations as well as for employers and all sorts of causes. This is because the average citizen often prefers to allow organizations to take care of legislative matters for him. There are, for example, many veterans organizations with paid lobbyists.

It would be difficult, indeed, to draw a line between what someone in the government itself decided was a proper or improper cause for purposes of lobbying. To allow anybody in government to make such distinctions would, in the language of the lawyers, be "arbitrary and capricious," and the courts probably would throw it out as an unconstitutional procedure.

The present lobby laws are far from clear. Mr. Truman intimated that he wants the laws strengthened. If he had said that he wants them clarified, he would certainly have been on better ground. For it is doubtful whether the present law is a valid exercise of constitutional authority.

Certainly if it is unconstitutional to ask a man what his political beliefs are, it is equally invalid to ask him to make a public record of what he says to a member of the legislative branch of the government on current issues. The present law stipulates that a lobbyist must tell where he has exerted influence and how he has don so. A more absurd statement is not to be found in any statute today governing individual rights and liberties.

Present Law Questioned

Congress can without doubt pass laws regulating the use of money or the offer of bribes or rewards to members of Congress in consideration of their votes or action in the legislative body. Such laws are already on the statute books. But it is a serious question whether Congress will be upheld in the present law, which requires individuals who petition their government to subject themselves to an invasion of their private conversations and even their private affairs. For clearly the fees paid to professional men for their advice to organizations or institutions are not a matter of public concern except where fraud or bribery has been perpetrated.

If the President is really interested in the lobbying that goes on, he might inquire into what happens away from Washington—among the political leaders who call up from back home and exercise political influence upon members of Congress. This probably would be called activity in the "public interest"—especially if Democrats are involved. This last sentence is written "with a broad grin," too.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

On The Air

BREAKING in as a radio commentator is no small chore. In the first place, you learn that time is of the essence. On the radio, there is a gang of clock-watchers who are trained to seconds or even to particles of seconds. Five seconds short—there is a commotion: 20 seconds over and there is a conference, each with stop-watch in hand.

You ask, "Was it a good broadcast?" They say, "Fine!" and stick their fingers to their noses. Do you know what that means? They cannot tell you a word you said. They do not know whether you were ture or false. They only know that you stopped exactly on time.

In fact the radio performer becomes so conscious of time that he hurries or slows up accordingly. They have motions and wiggles for that. I, of course, got the signals wrong. I have been getting signals wrong all my life. My wife kicks me under the table and I take a second helping. Signals seem to stimulate me to opposites. Maybe that is why I am a Republican.

So I have become a finger-nose sticker. It is the final achievement of a notable career.

Then they have a gadget inside the control room which shows what your voice does. I have a voice which is somewhere between a noble baritone and a profound basso in a word, when I call a taxi, the driver hears me. I got that way as a child, calling Montmorency on Grand Street. Of course, to paraphrase the old fable, I called him, Stinko! Be that as it may have been, the voice can fill a vast auditorium without a microphone.

So when that gadget first heard that voice, it began to hop and skip and shiver and shake. The instrument likes gentle, bland voices. But does the gadget know what I am talking about? Not on your life! The gadget only knows sound volume. After you learn how to stick your fingers to your nose, you must learn to keep the gadget within a narrow range. I'm learning fast.

But noses and gadgets are as nothing compared to critics. Everybody is an expert. One wants you to do it like Walter Winchell; another like Drew Pearson; another like H. V. Kaltenborn. But my problem on the radio, as in this column, is to be myself—and so, of course, it must be.

I gesticulate normally like a lover of garlic. In fact, all in all, I am a lover of garlic .So my gestures are sharp and numerous. In fact, no gestures are wasted on the radio. They do not even provide a mirror.I can't even see myself in action nor can I see an audience enjoy, dislike, approve, hate what I say.

Well, it is all exciting and stimulating, but I still believe in content. What is of value is what a man says and how he feels about it. When I hear in the evening said what I have already seen in a newspaper headline, I know no more than when I read the headline. Maybe that is why I dislike headlines. I would like them all abolished. I would use captions like "China," or "The Ruhr.' Just a slug. If the reader refuses to go further, let him go without knowledge.

Nothing should be done to make it easy for the man who insists upon his right to an opinion but will not do anything to justify his having an opinion.

Do you realize that there are lots of people who read nothing but headlines and listen to nothing but short, crisp sentences on the air—and who believe they have the facts? I once spent days digging for one figure and met dozens of people who were talking about that figure—approximately. They were approximate to the fifth magnitude.

So it is fun doing these jobs laboriously, with an aspiration toward precision, with a hope for exactness in content and expression. And maybe I shall one day enjoy the air as I do white paper with words on it, written in long-hand. What! No typewriter! The reactionery!

Wife Of Generalissimo Comes To Plead For China

It's not diplomatic protocol and it will cause some frowns in the State Department, but the flying visit of Mme. Chiang Kai-shek to the United States is a hopeful development in China's crisis.

If any individual can present the case for China aid to the American government and people that person is the wife of the Generalissimo. Mme. Chiang has lived for years in the United States. She received her higher education at Wellesly. She is a devout Christian and speaks English like a native American. Since before 1927, when Chiang broke with the Communists and set out to build up an independent China, she has been actively at her husband's side. She knows at first hand the devious ins and outs of China's domestic and foreign policy, and she has seen at close-range the menace of Chinese Communism.

One reason given for our hesitancy to increase aid in any appreciable amount is based on the claim, as Mark Sullivan cites in his column elsewhere on this page today, that the present government of China is inefficient and corrupt. But it is no different today than it was during the war when we approved it and gave it immediate aid. The United States has allotted more than $2,000,000,000 to China since VJ-Day, and conditions in Nanking have not changed.

At Yalta the United States betrayed pledges to Chiang at Ciro by giving Russia vital footholds in Manchuria and, in effect, encouraging a working alliance between Moscow and the Chinese Communists.

Apparently it is now believed in Washington that China can be saved from Communism only by a major military effort, which world conditions do not permit. Thus, China and the West seem destined to lose by default. Perhaps the defeat was inevitable from the start. But one reason for the approaching catastrophe, perhaps, is that a State Department which found it easy to swallow Marshal Tito could not stomach Chiang Kai-shek.

Mme. Chiang arrives here at a grave moment in her country's history—and a moment of critical decision in American history. The problem of China is monumental. Official Washington is considering a plan to give China prompt military and economic aid, on a scale of perhaps half a billion dollars a year, to be administered by 10,000 non-fighting American officers and enlisted men.

We do not know whether that plan will go through, or whether it would meet the collossal needs of China if it did. We doubt it. Such an amount would, in the views of some, be like throwing good money after bad. The Administration has intimated that future monetary aid may be very little in comparison to the help China feels is necessary. But the fact that it is even being discussed represents a welcome change from the attitude of folded hands in Washington, and from the nonsensical hopes of some men in the State Department that "maybe everything will be all right in China if the Reds form a coalition with 'liberal' Chinese."

Mme. Chiang has the information and the eloquence to combat that delusion, which would turn all Southeast Asia into another Soviet satellite camp.

Actions, Not Words, Really Count In Berlin

Readers of the news from Paris and Berlin are entitled to a feeling of bewilderment in trying to follow the meanderings of the Berlin crisis. One day they learn from Paris that Russia now looks with favor on the "neutral plan" to have the Berlin blockade raised simultaneously with restoration of the Soviet mark in the Berlin area. The next day they read that Berlin Communists under encouragement and protection of the Russian military, have set up a puppet regime in the Soviet zone of the city. This, of course, anticipates an anti-Communist victory in the municipal elections in the Western zones tomorrow. Such a formal split of the city would, in practice, rule out any co-operative use of the new currency.

It is natural to conclude from such contradictory moves that there is no consistency in Russia's Berlin policy. There is, however, a firm consistency beneath the varying show of words. The consistent Soviet aim is to gain control of Berlin as a step toward communizing all Germany. Russia's current gestures toward an agreement at Paris means no more than Russia's scheme to have all Allied troops withdrawn from Germany—after German pro-Communist troops and police have been trained to take over when the Western occupation forces have been withdrawn.

Here is the reality which the Allied peoples will ignore at their peril. Soviet Russian words are nothing. Like these occasional gestures toward compromise at Paris, they are mere camouflage. What counts is not what Russia says but what she does. The consistent Kremlin policy in Berlin has been a steady and relentless pressure toward the West.

December, The One Month Of Drama

In a good melodrama, things get tough for people, and you wonder how they will ever make out. The farm mortgage is about to be foreclosed. Indians are circling the little fort on the lone prairie. Then the unexpected happens: The skinflint creditor is pulled out of the creek by the farmer's son, and suffers a change of heart. From some Fort the cavalry emerge with swinging sabers. All's well that ends well.

That's the way with December. Or at least, if things do not immediately end well, they get a head-start in that direction. For the next three weeks we shall witness a grim approach. Whether or not there is snow and deepening cold, everybody notes the shortening days, the encroaching dark. Comes Winter, and the drama's denouement. For the moment, explains the dictionary, the receding sun "apparently stands still in its course." Thinking it over? Anyway, it turns around and starts north. Thus passes the solstice, the paradox of nature. "If Winter comes, can Spring be far behind? one asks. The answer is No, or not too far behind.

However stiff the siege that lies ahead, next month the redbirds will be singing again.

Jet-powered motorcars of the future will travel 500 miles an hour, it is predicted. Junior's jalopy is to have a rival at last.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Dr. Van Dellen

Once in a while, chronic skin diseases are due to infected teeth and tonsils and, unless nests of bacteria are removed, the lesions continue. This is not a common occurrence but several instances of the combination have been reported in medical journals; therefore, the possibility should not be neglected.

Andrews and his colleagues, of the Presbyterian Hospital in New York, told of a 71 year old man who had been plagued for five years with pustular rash on the nose and cheeks. Treatment during this period had been unsuccessful except that on one occasion a sulfonamide ointment helped temporarily. X-rays of his teeth, which had not been checked in many years, revealed the presence of abscesses at the roots of four. Three weeks after these teeth were extracted the facial eruption disappeared and has never returned.

In this case, the effect was dramatic and there is no doubt that a relationship exists between the teeth and the blemishes. While the physicians had no way of knowing beforehand that the plan would work so well, the patient had nothing to lose and everything to gain. His infected molars were a detriment to his health in general; it would have been a different story had his teeth been normal and the extractions were suggested on a theoretical basis.

Similar experiences also have been recorded in victims of a form of dermatitis partial to the palms of the hands and soles of the feet (pustular bacterids). In this disturbance, tiny blisters break out over the involved areas associated with itching and occasional swelling and pain. Each day, fresh eruptions appear and the old ones have a tendency to shrivel and dry up. Ultimately, the dermatitis vanishes, leaving the surface dry, shiny, and scaly but recurrences are common and some afflicted individuals suffer year after year without obtaining relief. In many, a focal infection is responsible and, when detected and eliminated, the skin disturbance fades away.

In one instance the victim was scarcely able to walk because of a pustular outbreak on both soles of the feet. X-rays of the teeth showed a questionable infection but hardly enough to warrant extraction. Later, it was found that the tonsils were small and scarred—a sign that they had been infected on numerous occasions. A needle was inserted in one of them and considerable pus obtained. After tonsillectomy, the skin improved quickly and has remained clear.

• — • — •

Eczema on the ankles and feet of older persons sometimes is traceable to abscessed teeth. The same can be said of women who develop patches of baldness on the scalp; these authors describe several cases in which hair grew back after focal infections were eradicated. The kinship is also in children; and now and then youngsters with eczema seem to be bothered during teething. From this, it is obvious that teeth play a role in certain skin diseases; dead and broken structures must be viewed with the same suspicion as abscessed teeth.

State Department Responsible for Venezuelan Coup; Department's Double-Dealing Flabbergasts Latin America; Labor Unions Taken By Surprise

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3—The latest Latin-American military coup, which overthrew the government of popular President Romulo Gallegos in Venezuela, can be laid directly on the doorstep of the State Department.

On Oct. 30, less than twenty-four hours after a similar army uprising had started in Peru, the State Department formally agreed to hold joint consultation with Ecuador, Colombia, Venezuela and Chile before any of them would decide whether to recognize the new Peruvian regime.

A promise to this effect was given personally by Paul Daniels, chief of the State Department's American Republics Division. The ambassadors of the four countries named above, who talked to him, immediately transmitted this word to their respective capitals.

But three days later, without any warning to these governments, the United States announced that it would "continue normal relations" with the Peruvian military junta. Our Latin-American neighbors were too flabbergasted to speak.

What has now happened in Venezuela—and will soon take place in other Latin-American republics—is the direct product of this incredible State Department double-dealing. Militarists, hungry for power all over the hemisphere, in effect have been given the green light by Washington.

The political crisis in Venezuela, which began to shape up some weeks ago, had already been solved, more or less to everyone's satisfaction, when suddenly the army moved in.

How The Military Operated

Here is the inside story of just how and why they operated.

President Gallegos, elected by the overwhelming majority of 72 per cent of the votes, was a personal friend of President Truman, had traveled with him last spring to Bolivar, Mo. A few weeks ago Gallegos had refused to be bluffed by an ultimatum from the opposition COPEI (Conservative) Party, supported by half a dozen top army officers, that he reorganize the Cabinet and give half the Cabinet posts to COPEI.

Gallegos flatly refused, but did offer COPEI two portfolios, with two others going to independents. (His Cabinet since taking office last February had been composed exclusively of men from his own party, Accion Democratica.)

At the same time, President Gallegos made two other moves. 1, he had labor unions throughout the country advised as to what was brewing; 2 he cabled Col. Mario Vargas, Inspector-General of the Army, to come home from Serenac Lake, N. Y., where he was resting.

Organized labor, led by the powerful oil workers' union, promptly issued a manifesto saying that 200,000 workers would back Gallegos "by any means the circumstances may require." And Col. Vargas, supposedly loyal to the government, arrived in Caracas Nov. 23.

State Department's Reversal

He went at once to consult with the President. By then, even the COPEI leaders thought themselves defeated and were prepared to accept Gallegos' compromise offer. But the fatal moment for the administration came when Col. Vargas, after leaving Gallegos' office, went to consult with fellow army officers.

The first thing they told him (which Vargas hadn't known) was that the U. S. State Department had turned its back on Gallegos in the Peruvian question and, after promising him joint consultation, had proceeded to recognize the Peruvian dictatorship. This, they argued, showed Washington's lack of confidence in the Gallegos regime and also its passive willingness to see the military take over wherever leftists were too strong.

The military men told Vargas that Communist labor leaders now controlled Gallegos. They also argued that after Jan. 20, when Truman's second administration was in office, it might be harder to get an army coup recognized in Venezuela.

Col. Vargas went back to see President Gallegos that evening and asked him if this version of the way Washington handled the Peruvian issue was true. When the President confirmed it, Vargas told him frankly that he could no longer support the government.

One hour later, Vargas was with other army brass, planning the coup. It came off smoothly thanks largely to the general belief throughout Venezuela that the earlier COPEI crisis was over. Before Venezuelan labor unions had a chance to rally anywhere, they found themselves facing tanks and machine guns at every corner.

Argentina's Joker

When the State Department announced it was maintaining relations with the Peruvian dictatorship, it cited the resolution adopted at the Bogota Conference last April, on "continuity of diplomatic relations." Most people didn't know it but that little joker was Argentina's baby. President Peron wanted it adopted and we blandly gave our blessing, despite strong protests to U. S. delegates from the diplomats of five other countries.

Leaving aside the doubtful wisdom of our support for the Peron resolution, Latin-American diplomats are now asking two very tough questions:

1. If we intended to adhere strictly to the Peron resolution, why did we promise Venezuela, Chile, Colombia and Ecuador to consult with them before recognizing the Peruvian dictatorship?

2. Having given our word, why did we break it three days later?

Note—The fall of President Gallegos is a double blow to American prestige. Not only did he travel with Truman to Bolivar, Mo., to dedicate a monument to Simon Bolivar, but he was wined and dined in the United States as one of our best Latin-American friends. Many Latins attribute the rise of Latin dictators to the Forrestal plan of sending U. S. arms to Latin-American armies. The more arms we send them, the stronger the military become.

Much Current Awareness Of What China's Fall Would Mean

By MARK SULLIVAN

Because of the Communist advance in China, and the presence in Washington of the wife of the head of the Chinese government Madame Chiang Kai-Shek, to ask aid, there is much current awareness of what the fall of China would mean to us. But the public awareness is short of the tragedy of the facts. And as the tragedy confronts us there is a disturbing development, a tendency to minimize it, to say in effect, "Oh, well, maybe it won't be so bad after all."

For a truer estimate, go back to what was recognized before the tragedy became imminent. This was that the fall of China to Communism and Russia would be a concrete and extreme calamity to us, both as an individual nation and in our role of spearhead of the free nations resisting the Russian attempt to communize the world. A statement of this is in a recent book, "China the Land and the People" by Gerald F. Winfield:

"Our stake in Asia has now become a matter of the survival of our democracy . . . even our very existence as a free people . . . The outcome of China's conflict may determine the fate of the human race in the second half of the twentieth century."

Judgment corresponding to that has been held by official American authorities. The head of our air forces in China during the recent war, Brigadier General Claire Chennault, writing about the strategy of the Communist leaders, said: "The domination of China is one of the strategical essentials necessary . . . before they can feel safe in making war on the world." A report of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs said that success by the Communists in taking over China would result in "one Soviet-dominated world." There were many expressions of corresponding judgments of what would follow, some going into details, including Communist domination of all Eastern and Southeastern Asia, thereby making our position as to the Philippines and Japan perhaps untenable. About the over-all consequences of Communist victory in China, there was verification from the head of the Communist Party in America, William Z. Foster, who in 1945 said: "The war in China is the key to all problems of the international front . . ."

"Ifs" On Verge Of Becoming "Is"

These "ifs" are now on the verge of becoming "is". In this imminence arises a disquieting kind of optimism, accompanied by self-excuse for not giving to China the amount of aid its government needs and pleads for. Much talk goes out of Washington to the effect that the present government of China is inefficient and corrupt. But it is the same government under the same head that China had during the war, in the pressure and atmosphere of which we approved it and gave it immense aid. We shrink from facing the fact that by our aid to China during the war we gave it reason to expect the aid it now asks for. And the fact that we implicitly promised aid, in the broad general statement President Truman made in March, 1947, when we went to the rescue of Greece: ". . . It must be the policy of the United States to support free peoples who are resisting attempted subjugation by armed minorities or by outside pressure."

The true reason we are not likely to give China the amount of aid its government pleads for is that we are faced by a dilemma. We have committed ourselves to giving immense aid, economic and military, to the countries of Western Europe against the prong of Communist advance on that continent. To add to this commitment one of corresponding magnitude to resist the Communist advance on the Asiatic continent would be to spread our strength dangerously thin.

Perhaps Choice Is Tenable

Perhaps the choice which circumstances force upon us is tenable. In Europe the stake we defend is a group of countries which with us make up the greatest area of industrial and economic strength in the world. In China the stake is five hundred million people, not economically or industrially advanced. Probably the stake in Europe is at present the one most imperatively calling for all-out defense. In any event we are committed to it. Economic aid to Western Europe is already under way, and we are in process, through the planned North Atlantic Alliance, of committing ourselves, with Canada and some ten Western European countries, to military defense of a vast area stretching from the border where northern Norway faces Russia to the border where Alaska faces Russia across the Bering Sea.

Nevertheless, loss of China, or of Chinese confidence in us, would recall uncomfortably a judgement uttered nearly fifty years ago by John Hay, then our Secretary of State: "Whoever understands that mighty empire . . . has a key to world politics for the next 500 years."

Truman Would Place Lobbyists In Groups To Meet His Desires

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3 — President Truman was in a jocular mood when he met the Washington correspondents on Thursday—so much so that serious questions of government seemed at times to be treated rather lightly.

Thus the President was asked whether the proposed restriction on "lobbyists" might become an infringement on the right of petition guaranteed by the Constitution. He said anyone who raised that issue was wrong. He stated that there was a difference between a paid lobbyist and a citizen who wrote to Congress or urged something in the public interest. Here is how the United Press described the reply:

"The Chief Executive separated spokesmen for what he seemed to regard as legitimate causes and those he called paid lobbyists. He said paid lobbyists constituted another thing and he was against them.

"Asked how he would regard lobbyists who worked in behalf of his program, Mr. Truman with a broad grin said that was a different matter—that these were citizens appearing in the public interest, and he promised that anything requested by his Administration would be in the public interest."

Would Give Comfort To Moscow

Obviously the phrase "with a broad grin" was intended to convey the idea that Mr. Truman was joking. It is best to interpret such an extreme statement as having been made in lighter vein. Read seriously, it would give considerable comfort to the Moscow press where totalitarianism is practiced on exactly that same basis. If the cause is in the "public interest"—and the party in power decides what is or is not in the public interest—then there can be discussion and even petition to the government. But if it's an opposition viewpoint, it is squelched.

But presumably Mr. Truman was only joking. For he knows better than anybody else outside of Congress that paid lobbyists are employed by worthy as well as unworthy causes. He certainly did not mean to imply that paid lobbying was improper and not in the public interest. There are paid lobbyists for labor organizations as well as for employers and all sorts of causes. This is because the average citizen often prefers to allow organizations to take care of legislative matters for him. There are, for example, many veterans organizations with paid lobbyists.

It would be difficult, indeed, to draw a line between what someone in the government itself decided was a proper or improper cause for purposes of lobbying. To allow anybody in government to make such distinctions would, in the language of the lawyers, be "arbitrary and capricious," and the courts probably would throw it out as an unconstitutional procedure.

The present lobby laws are far from clear. Mr. Truman intimated that he wants the laws strengthened. If he had said that he wants them clarified, he would certainly have been on better ground. For it is doubtful whether the present law is a valid exercise of constitutional authority.

Certainly if it is unconstitutional to ask a man what his political beliefs are, it is equally invalid to ask him to make a public record of what he says to a member of the legislative branch of the government on current issues. The present law stipulates that a lobbyist must tell where he has exerted influence and how he has don so. A more absurd statement is not to be found in any statute today governing individual rights and liberties.

Present Law Questioned

Congress can without doubt pass laws regulating the use of money or the offer of bribes or rewards to members of Congress in consideration of their votes or action in the legislative body. Such laws are already on the statute books. But it is a serious question whether Congress will be upheld in the present law, which requires individuals who petition their government to subject themselves to an invasion of their private conversations and even their private affairs. For clearly the fees paid to professional men for their advice to organizations or institutions are not a matter of public concern except where fraud or bribery has been perpetrated.

If the President is really interested in the lobbying that goes on, he might inquire into what happens away from Washington—among the political leaders who call up from back home and exercise political influence upon members of Congress. This probably would be called activity in the "public interest"—especially if Democrats are involved. This last sentence is written "with a broad grin," too.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

On The Air

BREAKING in as a radio commentator is no small chore. In the first place, you learn that time is of the essence. On the radio, there is a gang of clock-watchers who are trained to seconds or even to particles of seconds. Five seconds short—there is a commotion; 20 seconds over and there is a conference, each with stop-watch in hand.

You ask, "Was it a good broadcast?" They say, "Fine!" and stick their fingers to their noses. Do you know what that means? They cannot tell you a word you said. They do not know whether you were ture or false. They only know that you stopped exactly on time.

In fact the radio performer becomes so conscious of time that he hurries or slows up accordingly. They have motions and wiggles for that. I, of course, got the signals wrong. I have been getting signals wrong all my life. My wife kicks me under the table and I take a second helping. Signals seem to stimulate me to opposites. Maybe that is why I am a Republican.

So I have become a finger-nose sucker. It is the final achievement of a notable career.

Then they have a gadget inside the control room which shows what your voice does. I have a voice which is somewhere between a noble baritone and a profound basso in a word, when I call a taxi, the driver hears me. I got that way as a child, calling Montmorency on Grand Street. Of course, to paraphrase the old fable, I called him, Stinko! Be that as it may have been, the voice can fill a vast auditorium without a microphone.

So when that gadget first heard that voice, it began to hop and skip and shiver and shake. The instrument likes gentle, bland voices. But does the gadget know what I am talking about? Not on your life! The gadget only knows sound volume. After you learn how to stick your fingers to your nose, you must learn to keep the gadget within a narrow range. I'm learning fast.

But Loses and gadgets are as nothing compared to critics. Everybody is an expert. One wants you to do it like Walter Winchell; another like Drew Pearson; another like H. V. Kaltenborn. But my problem on the radio, as in this column, is to be myself—and so, of course, it must be.

I gesticulate normally like a lover of garlic. In fact, all in all, I am a lover of garlic .So my gestures are sharp and numerous. In fact, no gestures are wasted on the radio. They do not even provide a mirror. I can't even see myself in action nor can I see an audience enjoy, dislike, approve, hate what I say.

Well, it is all exciting and stimulating, but I still believe in content. What is of value is what a man says and how he feels about it. When I hear in the evening said what I have already seen in a newspaper headline, I know no more than when I read the headline. Maybe that is why I dislike headlines. I would like them all abolished. I would use captions like "China," or "The Ruhr.' Just a slug. If the reader refuses to go further, let him go without knowledge.

Nothing should be done to make it easy for the man who insists upon his right to an opinion but will not do anything to justify his having an opinion.

Do you realize that there are lots of people who read nothing but headlines and listen to nothing but short, crisp sentences on the air—and who believe they have the facts? I once spent days digging for one figure and met dozens of people who were talking about that figure—approximately. They were approximate to the fifth magnitude.

So it is fun doing these jobs laboriously, with an aspiration toward precision, with a hope for exactness in content and expression. And maybe I shall one day enjoy the air as I do white paper with words on it, written in long-hand. What! No typewriter! The reactionery!

(Q) "Dear Nancy: I haven't a problem yet, but something that happened recently might turn into one. A friend of mine is going steady with a boy I used to date. We're still friendly, and the other night, when coming home from the movies, I met him and we stopped at a drugstore near by for a coke. Another friend of mine passed by and I know she saw us. I'm afraid that she'll go to his girl and tell her, and she might believe I was dating him secretely that night. What can I do about this?"

Nancy Mottram

(A) Go to her before your other friend has the chance to put your meeting in the wrong light and tell her the story. If you keep putting it off because you can't work up the courage, she won't believe you when you finally do. Make a point of seeing her and explaining—then, no tale bearer will be able to put both you and the lad on his steady's black list. The sooner you get it taken care of, the better.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: A boy from out of town is coming to see me in a couple of weeks, and there's going to be a big party that same Saturday night. The hostess asked me to come and to bring my date, but we'd planned to double date with a couple, whom she knows, but didn't invite. Should I ask he. if I may bring them along, too, or would it be better not to say anything about it and not go?"

(A) Since he's from out of town and she doesn't know him, it's only natural for you to ask if you might bring him. But you can't very well ask to bring the others along. Had she wanted them there, she would have invited them, and it's not up to you to try to change the guest list. You'll have to make a choice. Either double date and tell the hostess you're sorry but you won't be able to come, or go with him alone to the party.

(Q) "Dear Nancy: Just a couple of weeks ago, I was introduced to a boy who'd just moved into town. He doesn't go to my school, but he has made friends with some boys who go there, and so I see him quite often. We've talked together several times and I'm beginning to think a lot of him. We're having a dance at school soon, and girls are expected to ask boys, but since I've never been out with him and haven't known him too long, do you think I should ask him?"

(A) Why not? He probably feels a little strange still, and it would be a wonderful way of getting to know him better. It would give him a chance to meet your friends, too, possibly pave the way for double dates in the future. He might have wanted to call you but hesitated because he's "new." And that dance would be the best way to break the ice and help him feel at home.

Nancy will help with all your problems. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Eagles To Honor John J. Stump, First President

Initiation To Be Held December 21

Cumberland Aerie No. 245, Fraternal Order of Eagles, will initiate a large class of candidates in honor of John J. Stump, its first president, at ceremonies planned in the Eagles Home here Tuesday night, December 21.

Stump, one of the five surviving charter members of the aerie, became the first worthy president when the Cumberland aerie was instituted July 30, 1902.

Since then, he has remained keenly interested in the welfare and activities of the aerie he helped to found.

Worthy President Francis T. Twigg announced yesterday that a special invitation is being extended to all the surviving charter members as well as to the older members who remember the early days of the aerie.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p. m. when officers of the aerie, led by Worthy President Twigg, will exemplify the ritual to the new members.

The aerie now has some 3,800 members and is the largest fraternal organization in Maryland.

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

Hidden Friends

Every passing human being is a potential friend, though temporarily no more than a hidden stranger. And yet, over an entire lifetime how few of these strangers do we invite out of their shell! Even then they are all too often elusive.

Often it takes daring on our part to entice a friend our way. Potentially we are hidden in a thousand other human beings as their friend, just as they are hidden in us as our friend. How many times we come upon one of these hidden strangers, wondering why our discovery came so late. Tomorrow you may meet your greatest friend! We never know the day nor the hour for such a meeting.

Many of us may be watched by an unseen friend and never to meet. But if there be but a tiny flame of our influence that may warm some corner of that unknown heart, we are thrice blessed. For nothing is so satisfying as to have given out warmth. In some manner or other it is sure to be returned.

Often it takes an emergency, or some strange happening, to reveal a friend whose only relation to us may have been but his name. The discovery of a friend is far more important than the discovery of a new star, or a piece of land, or an uncatalogued bird, beast or book! The discovery of a friend is an outstanding event.

It is unfortunate that so many potential friends are hidden behind conventionalities, traditions and whatnots. One tiny thread of understanding could unite and bind us all together. Your greatest friend tomorrow may be the stranger that you passed today! Like the angel in Michael Angelo's great block of marble—needing but the hammer and chisel to bring it to life.

There is a hunger in us all, and it's mostly for a friend—a consultant, a consoler, or a friend to whom we can confess.

Protected, 1948, By The George Matthew Adams Service.

Soldier On Leave Is Hunting Victim

A Franklin, W. Va., soldier on furlough was an instant victim of an accidental shot Wednesday afternoon while deer hunting two miles from his home.

The victim was identified by State Police Cpl. Robert Schnell as George Ona Hammer, Jr., 20 son of Mr. and Mrs. George O. Hammer, Sr., Franklin.

Hammer was a member of a party of ten men who were hunting deer in a thickly wooded section east of Franklin Cpl. Schnell said, when the mishap occurred.

He said Hammer was struck by a "pumpkin ball" slug from a .20 guage shotgun fired by Howard Simmons, about 60, of Franklin.

Simmons told a coroner's jury last night that he had been with the group of the party on the deer drive, and as they neared Hammer and others, who were waiting to shoot at a stand, he fired at a deer.

The shot missed the animal and hit Hammer, who was standing 45 yards from Simmons, behind the left ear and lodged in the forehead. Death was instantaneous, Cpl. Schnell said.

The coroner's jury issued a verdict of accidental death.

The body will remain at the Brown Funeral Home, Franklin, until completion of a routine investigation by Army authorities.

Hammer had arrived at home for a ten-day furlough while enroute from Sheppard Air Force Base at Wichita Falls, Texas, to an Air Force Base in South Dakota.

The first annual dinner-dance of the Hi-Jinks Club of the Cumberland District Office of the Peoples Life Insurance Company at the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club last night was marked by talks by W. W. White, secretary of the company, and E. L. Hogan, division superintendent of agents, both of Washington, D. C.

Power Failure Causes Shutdown At Celanese

A section of the spinning department of the Celanese plant was shut down from 10:30 p. m. until 1:10 a. m. Thursday because of a power failure, according to Fred T. Small, plant manager.

Small said that a cable to the spinning section had become faulty and that it required some time to connect another line to the department. The shutdown of the spinning machines was expensive, Small said.

The company has three lines of electrical power entering the plant, one from the River plant of the Potomac Edison here and standby lines from Lake Lynn and Williamsport. Ordinarily a power failure does not cause any damage or inconvenience as either of the other two lines can be cut into by the plant, Small pointed out.

Ridgeley Worker Lost Overnight

After his disappearance while deer hunting late Wednesday afternoon, Samuel Roby Williams, 59, Maryland Junction, W. Va., was found yesterday walking along Route 219, near Parsons, W. Va.

A veteran employe of the Ridgeley shops of the Western Maryland Railway, he is married and the father of several children.

Mr. Williams, employed at the Ridgeley shops as a machinist helper for a number of years, left Parsons yesterday afternoon with his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Williams, to hunt deer in the Douglas Road section, off Route 219.

The party parked its car along the road about 4 o'clock and entered the woods. After walking about 100 yards above the road Mr. Williams sat down to rest and said he would do his hunting in that area.

The son and his wife continued into the woods and when they returned about two hours later could find no trace of the elder Williams. They searched the section until 3 o'clock and then asked the Parsons Volunteer Fire Company for assistance.

Twenty members of the company, headed by Chief Earl Corbran, covered an area of 10 square miles between 9 p. m. and 3 a. m. in an effort to find Williams without success despite the use of spotlights to guide him to the road.

The son and his wife and a group of hunters continued their search throughout the night, and arrangements were being made in Parsons for another large party to go into the woods along Douglas road when a report was received that Williams had been found on Route 219 on Backbone Mountain.

New Diphtheria Case Reported

A 44-year-old local woman has the first new case of diptheria reported in recent weeks, according to the Health Department. It is the 14th case of the year.

Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, pointed out the number of cases this year is far below the 135 reported in 1947.

There were eight deaths last year with two children in the same family victims to the disease. Of the 135 cases in 1947 about 30 per cent were adults, Dr. Frantz said.

Erection of a contagious disease ward at Memorial Hospital, which is assured through the approval of both the county and city in furnishing the $60,000 needed, will aid greatly in treating diphtheria cases, according to Dr. Frantz. The ward will provide facilities for isolating persons with the disease and prevent its spread, he added.

Auto Accident Is Fatal To Milton Van Meter

A 25-year-old Cresaptown man was fatally injured at 2:40 a. m. yesterday when his car left McMullen Highway, broke off a power-phone pole and tore out six guard-rail posts near the Celanese plant before plunging down a 20-foot embankment.

State Trooper G. M. Rotruck said the victim, Milton George Urner "Bus" VanMeter, was apparently driving home at the time of the crash. It was raining and foggy.

Area Plunged Into Darkness

The impact of the car with the power-phone pole and toppling of the pole caused the area to be plunged into darkness for several hours. Workmen for the Potomac Edison and C. and P. Telephone Company were called by police at the Celanese.

The immediate cause of the power failure was not determined and the crash was not discovered for about 15 minutes after it took place. Finally the 1940 convertible was discovered.

Due to the danger from two 4,000-volt electric wires which were lying across the guard rails and highway no one approached very close to the wrecked car. Later George Parker and Kenneth Housell, who were nearby, circled around and came up to the machine from the other side and found Van Meter's body 20 feet from the car.

Skid Marks On Road

Trooper Rotruck said there were skid marks on the highway to indicate that Van Meter had applied his brakes and the officer said the machine apparently was traveling at a high rate of speed.

VanMeter served in the Army during World War II. He is survived by his parents, Milton George and Bell Botemarkle VanMeter, three brothers, M. Claudis VanMeter, Potomac Park, and Marshall and Clayton VanMeter, Cresaptown, and three sisters, Mrs. Catherine McGraw, Potomac Park; Mrs. Marguerite McKee, Morgantown, W. Va., and Mrs. Emogene Stouffer, Cresaptown.

The body was taken to the Stein Funeral Home.

Hidden Friends

Every passing human being is a potential friend, though temporarily no more than a hidden stranger. And yet, over an entire lifetime how few of these strangers do we invite out of their shell! Even then they are all too often elusive.

Often it takes daring on our part to entice a friend our way. Potentially we are hidden in a thousand other human beings as their friend, just as they are hidden in us as our friend. How many times we come upon one of these hidden strangers, wondering why our discovery came so late. Tomorrow you may meet your greatest friend! We never know the day nor the hour for such a meeting.

Many of us may be watched by an unseen friend and never to meet. But if there be but a tiny flame of our influence that may warm some corner of that unknown heart, we are thrice blessed. For nothing is so satisfying as to have given out warmth. In some manner or other it is sure to be returned.

Often it takes an emergency, or some strange happening, to reveal a friend whose only relation to us may have been but his name. The discovery of a friend is far more important than the discovery of a new star, or a piece of land, or an uncatalogued bird, beast or book! The discovery of a friend is an outstanding event.

It is unfortunate that so many potential friends are hidden behind conventionalities, traditions and whatnots. One tiny thread of understanding could unite and bind us all together. Your greatest friend tomorrow may be the stranger that you passed today! Like the angel in Michael Angelo's great block of marble—needing but the hammer and chisel to bring it to life.

There is a hunger in us all, and it's mostly for a friend—a consultant, a counsellor, or a friend to whom we can confess.

Blackwell addressed the massed strikers and urged them to remain calm and orderly. His proposals to name a committee of nine to seek an interview with Superior Court Judge H .E. Nichols and demand that the Celanese plant gates be closed for the duration of the strike was accepted by the workers.

Judge Nichols was conferring with the committee at 9:30 o'clock.

Meanwhile, Deputy Sheriff Hank Russell announced that Sealock would not be released under bond "until he has sobered up," Blackwell said.

A tense and growing crowd of strikers is assembling at the union hall to await a report of the meeting of the committee with Judge Nichols, he added.

A back-to-work movement in the 17-week-old strike was instituted by the firm October 26.

"Send more Scriptures," cabled General MacArthur to the American Bible Society, and this in spite of the fact that over 2,500,000 copies have already been sent to Japan by the Society since V-J Day.

"Send more Scriptures,"—7,856,000 copies, is the specific request of fifteen nations, unable to produce their own Bibles since the war.

From all over the world this urgent cry is being heard. It is up to us—all men of goodwill—to answer this plea.

We invested in bombs and battleships for the sake of a new chance for freedom under God. Now we must invest in Bibles which contain the one sure plan to make good that chance.

The two boys above are pictured in the receiving room of the Japan Bible Society. They are preparing Scriptures from America for distribution. Let us give our wholehearted support to this cause, which will bring the Word of the Lord to men of all nations.

"Send more Scriptures," cabled General MacArthur to the American Bible Society, and this in spite of the fact that over 2,500,000 copies have already been sent to Japan by the Society since V-J Day.

"Send more Scriptures,"—7,856,000 copies, is the specific request of fifteen nations, unable to produce their own Bibles since the war.

From all over the world this urgent cry is being heard. It is up to us—all men of goodwill—to answer this plea.

We invested in bombs and battleships for the sake of a new chance for freedom under God. Now we must invest in Bibles which contain the one sure plan to make good that chance.

The two boys above are pictured in the receiving room of the Japan Bible Society. They are preparing Scriptures from America for distribution. Let us give our wholehearted support to this cause, which will bring the Word of the Lord to men of all nations.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Maryland Cagers To Battle Temple

Terps To Meet Owls In Philadelphia Gym

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3 (AP)—The intercollegiate basketball doubleheader season opens here tomorrow night with Temple's potent five meeting Maryland and St. Joseph's veteran outfit tangling with Tennessee at Convention Hall.

Temple will take the floor with the same lineup that buried Franklin and Marshall 96-39 in the Owl's opener last night. The Temple team is built around three veterans—Ed Lerner, holder of the school's all-time scoring record. Nelson Bobb, deadly set shot and six-foot, five-inch Ike Borsavage.

St. Joe, victor over Lock Haven (Pa) Teachers, 83-53, in its opener, also will present a well-seasoned team. Leading the Hawks is Paul Senesky, who led the Philadelphia district in scoring last season.

Tennessee's big gun is six-foot, two inch Paul Walter, who led the Southerners to 20 victories in 25 games last season by scoring 334 points.

Baltimore Orioles Plan House Cleaning

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3. (AP)—Manager Tommy Thomas announced today a house cleaning of players on his Baltimore Oriole team which finished last in the International Baseball League.

Thomas said he would offer for trade at the meeting of minor leagues in Minneapolis next week practically every holdover. This includes the league's home run king, Howie Moss.

Thomas let it be known the Orioles, finishing last for only the third time in league history, will spare no effort to improve.

"We're after pitchers and a shortstop in particular," said Thomas, "and we'll throw in cash with players to get what we want. We'll trade with any club, listen to any deal."

The Orioles already have purchased several players from the St. Louis Browns with whom they signed a working agreement this year. They formerly had a similar agreement with the Cleveland Indians.

Northwestern Wins Toss, To Wear Purple Jerseys

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 3 (AP) — Northwestern's Wildcats won the first skirmish today in its coming Rose Bowl football battle with California.

Northwestern will wear purple jerseys in the game, and California will wear white instead of its familiar blue.

The issue, arising from the similarity of the two colors, was decided in a coin flipping ceremony. Athletic Director Ted Payseur of Northwestern won the toss from Coach Lynn (Pappy) Waldorf of California.

$100,000 PACKAGE—According to reports in baseball circles, the Chicago White Sox are willing to swap three players and $100,000 for Bob Dillinger (above), the St. Louis Browns' star third sacker. Dillinger batted .321 this year and topped the league in base stealing.

Danny Murtaugh Rises To Great Heights As Buc

'Small Change' In Deal Elated Over 52 Votes

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP)—Winning 52 votes in the National League's most valuable player poll is quite a feat for a little fellow who didn't even think he'd last the 16 days necessary to collect his pension.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals won the award, but he couldn't be any prouder of his 303 votes than little Danny Murtaugh is of his 52.

"I wasn't worried about making the team in spring training," said Danny. "I was just dubious .And those 16 days I needed to become eligible for a pension never left my mind."

Murtaugh, second baseman for the Pittsburgh Pirates, shook his head wonderingly and muttered, "Humph, imagine that, 52 votes. Honestly, I didn't think too much of my chances of making the ball club. It's wonderful."

Had His Ups And Downs

It's easy to understand why the second sacker was so surprised and pleased. His has been a real case of up and down the baseball ladder.

Murtaugh came up from Houston of the Texas League in 1941 to the Philadelphia Phillies. He became a brilliant fielder and in 1942 led the National League in stealing bases.

In 1943 Murtaugh entered the army and served in both Germany and Japan. He returned to the Phillies in 1946 but the following season found himself with Rochester of the International League. The Boston Braves bought Danny and sent him to their Milwaukee farm where he set an American Association fielding record of 37 consecutive errorless games.

That performance brought him to the rejuvenated Pirates of 1948. But as Murtaugh himself put it, "I was small change in a five-man deal."

"The Braves tossed me in to make the deal a little more interesting to the Pirates," said Danny.

The Pirates have no regrets for taking the excess baggage. Little Danny was the outstanding comebacker on a team that figured second division and ended fourth.

Praised By Meyer

Pirate Manager Bill Meyer describes the 30-year-old Murtaugh as "just about the best second baseman in the league."

But the ever modest Danny disclaims credit for his success.

"I played alongside the most underrated shortstop in the league, Stan Rojek. We just seemed to know what the other fellow was going to do on any play. He made me look good more than once."

Murtaugh explained his .290 batting average—highest in his major league career—was due mostly to the confidence Meyer showed in him.

"Bill let me hit with men on bases. I never had to worry about being taken out for a pinchhitter. I hope my 71 runs batted in justified his faith," Murtaugh said.

BASKETBALL FILMS TO BE SHOWN AT "Y"

The films are entitled "Basketball Today" and "Shooting in Basketball" and fully cover all the new rules and other phases of the popular indoor sport.

EXPERTS WILL VOTE ON CONN-LOUIS BOUT

CHICAGO, Dec. 3. (INS)—Chicago fight promotor Frank E. Harmon is going to give Billy Conn a chance to achieve what he failed to accomplish in two championship fights with world heavyweight king Joe Louis.

Louis and Conn are scheduled to fight a 6-round exhibition Dec. 10 in Chicago International Amphitheater. Officially, there is no decision in an exhibition. Knockouts are infrequently because the contestants wear "pillows"—14-ounce gloves that are hard to hurt with.

But Harmon said today he's going to have a decision in his production. The promoter will poll ringside sportswriters and radio sportscasters for their verdict on the fisticuffs.

The experts' opinions will be tabulated and Harmon will announce the result from the ring.

Denver Loses AAU Cage Tournament To Oklahoma City

Track And Field Meet Goes To Fresno, Calif.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Forty swimming records were approved, boxing rules were modified to reduce injuries and championship sites for 1949 were selected today as delegates to the 60th National AAU Convention got down to serious business.

A day filled with committee hearings, behind-the-scenes maneuvering and a few disappointments for rejected tournament seekers also produced these major developments:

1. San Francisco was selected as the site of the 1949 convention, to be held Dec. 1, 2 and 3.

2. The track and field committee voted to award the 1949 meet to Fresno, Calif., and the decathlon championships to Tulare, Calif., home town of Olympic Titlist Bob Mathias.

3. The basketball committee decided that the 1949 men's cage tournament should go to Oklahoma City despite a determined effort by Denver to entertain the court meet for the 15th straight year.

4. Arrangements were made for numerous individuals and teams from foreign countries to compete in this country in 1949, perhaps including a bobsled crew from Germany which would be the first group from that conquered nation to participate in international athletics since the war.

All committee recommendations still must be approved by the full convention, but the group virtually always follows the decisions of its committees.

If approved, the track and field championships will be held at Fresno, June 24 and 25, and the decathlon at Tulare June 28 and 29.

With 23 district associations represented in the basketball committee meeting, the vote was 14 to 9 in favor of Oklahoma City.

Denver Loses Tourney

Willard N. Greim of Denver, chairman of the committee, said the majority of the members "felt it was time to make a change." Denver had held the basketball tournament since 1935, when it was moved from Kansas City.

Of the 40 swimming records approved by the records committee, including 31 American records, eight of them also have been recognized as world marks.

The eight include two by Joe Verdeur of Philadelphia 2:14.7 for the 200 yard breaststroke, set at Ann Arbor, Mich., last March 27, and 2.30 for the 200 meter breaststroke, set at New Haven, Conn., last June 28.

Other individual world marks approved as American records were 55.4 seconds for the 100 meter freestyle by Alan Ford of Yale at New Haven, last June 29; 59.4 seconds for the 100 yard breaststroke by Keith Carter of Purdue at Lafayette, Ind., last Decfl 12; and 5:03.9 for the 400 meter backstroke by Allen Stack of Yale at New Haven last Feb. 14. The other three were in relay racing.

The foreign relations committee announced that teams from England, France and Switzerland already had accepted invitations to compete in the world bobsled championships at Lake Placid, N. Y., Jan. 29-30 and Feb. 5-6.

Germans Get Permission

Germany, Italy, Norway and Canada also have been invited. Officials said permission had been granted by the U. S. occupation forces in Germany for a team from that country to attend.

The committee also reported that a basketball team from Manila had been invited to play in California, that European boxers would be invited to the Chicago Golden Gloves Tournament and that the AAU will support a plan for a world basketball championship at Nuenos Aires in 1950.

Trojans Battle Fighting Irish At Los Angeles

Undefeated Clemson Meets The Citadel

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Notre Dame's intersectional clash with Southern California in Memorial Stadium at Los Angeles is a standout in tomorrow's final go-round of the regular college football season.

The Irish from South Bend, ranked second only to Michigan in the Associated Press' final 1948 poll of the nation's grid experts, will be a heavy favorite to trounce the Trojans and wind up their third straight undefeated campaign. A crowd of around 100,000 will witness the game.

The Clemson Tigers, another major unbeaten eleven, also are expected to close in a rash of touchdowns against The Citadel at Charleston, S. C. The Southern Conference leaders were ranked No. 11 in the final national poll.

Alabama and Auburn meet at Birmingham in their first football game since 1907. No one can recall what the two Alabama schools have been mad about all that time.

Wisconsin Students Petition Referendum In Stuhldreher Case

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 3—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin student board prepared today to receive a campus petition calling for a referendum on the question:

"Should Harry Stuhldreher be retained as head (football) coach?"

The board said it had learned that enough signatures to force a referendum at this time had been collected on a petition circulating on the campus during the past six weeks.

The Badger campus has been rife with comment since Oct. 20, when a banner reading "Goodbye Harry," aimed at Stuhldreher, was unfurled in the stands as Wisconsin lost to Yale, 17-7.

The Badgers finished the season with two victories and seven defeats.

Monaca Boxer Knocked Down In 1st Round

9,814 Witness Match, Jake To Meet Cerdan

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (INS)—Jake LaMotta, veteran New York middleweight, won a 10-round decision over Tommy Yarosz, of Monaca, Pa., in the feature bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Although the decision was unanimous, the fight was a close one. The referee and one judge gave five rounds to LaMotta, four to Yarosz, and called one even. The other judge gave seven rounds to LaMotta and three to Yarosz.

Yarosz won his rounds by superior speed and by beating his opponent to the punch. LaMotta, however, never took a backward step and gradually weakened the Pennsylvanian with his body attack.

A crowd of 9,814 paid $22,949 to see the fight.

Terps To Meet Owls In Philadelphia Gym

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 3 (AP)—The intercollegiate basketball doubleheader season opens here tomorrow night with Temple's potent five meeting Maryland and St. Joseph's veteran outfit tangling with Tennessee at Convention Hall.

Temple will take the floor with the same lineup that buried Franklin and Marshall 96-39 in the Owl's opener last night. The Temple team is built around three veterans—Ed Lerner, holder of the school's all-time scoring record. Nelson Bobb, deadly set shot and six-foot, five-inch Ike Borsavage.

St. Joe, victor over Lock Haven (Pa) Teachers, 83-53, in its opener, also will present a well-seasoned team. Leading the Hawks is Paul Senesky, who led the Philadelphia district in scoring last season.

Tennessee's big gun is six-foot, two inch Paul Walter, who led the Southerners to 20 victories in 25 games last season by scoring 334 points.

Baltimore Orioles Plan House Cleaning

BALTIMORE, Dec. 3. (AP)—Manager Tommy Thomas announced today a house cleaning of players on his Baltimore Oriole team which finished last in the International Baseball League.

Thomas said he would offer for trade at the meeting of minor leagues in Minneapolis next week practically every holdover. This includes the league's home run king, Howie Moss.

Thomas let it be known the Orioles, finishing last for only the third time in league history, will spare no effort to improve.

"We're after pitchers and a shortstop in particular," said Thomas, "and we'll throw in cash with players to get what we want. We'll trade with any club, listen to any deal."

The Orioles already have purchased several players from the St. Louis Browns with whom they signed a working agreement this year. They formerly had a similar agreement with the Cleveland Indians.

Danny Murtaugh Rises To Great Heights As Buc

'Small Change' In Deal Elated Over 52 Votes

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

CHESTER, Pa., Dec. 3 (AP)—Winning 52 votes in the National League's most valuable player poll is quite a feat for a little fellow who didn't even think he'd last the 16 days necessary to collect his pension.

Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals won the award, but he couldn't be any prouder of his 303 votes than little Danny Murtaugh is of his 52.

"I wasn't worried about making the team in spring training," said Danny. "I was just dubious .And those 16 days I needed to become eligible for a pension never left my mind."

Murtaugh, second baseman for the Pittsburgh Pirates, shook his head wonderingly and muttered, "Humph, imagine that, 52 votes. Honestly, I didn't think too much of my chances of making the ball club. It's wonderful."

Had His Ups And Downs

It's easy to understand why the second sacker was so surprised and pleased. His has been a real case of up and down the baseball ladder.

Murtaugh came up from Houston of the Texas League in 1941 to the Philadelphia Phillies. He became a brilliant fielder and in 1942 led the National League in stealing bases.

In 1943 Murtaugh entered the army and served in both Germany and Japan. He returned to the Phillies in 1946 but the following season found himself with Rochester of the International League. The Boston Braves bought Danny and sent him to their Milwaukee farm where he set an American Association fielding record of 37 consecutive errorless games.

That performance brought him to the rejuvenated Pirates of 1948. But as Murtaugh himself put it, "I was small change in a five-man deal."

"The Braves tossed me in to make the deal a little more interesting to the Pirates," said Danny.

The Pirates have no regrets for taking the excess baggage. Little Danny was the outstanding comeback on a team that figured second division and ended fourth.

Praised By Meyer

Pirate Manager Bill Meyer describes the 30-year-old Murtaugh as "just about the best second baseman in the league."

But the ever modest Danny disclaims credit for his success.

"I played alongside the most underrated shortstop in the league, Stan Rojek. We just seemed to know what the other fellow was going to do on any play. He made me look good more than once."

Murtaugh explained his .290 batting average—highest in his major league career—was due mostly to the confidence Meyer showed in him.

"Bill let me hit with men on bases. I never had to worry about being taken out for a pinchhitter. I hope my 71 runs batted in justified his faith," Murtaugh said.

BASKETBALL FILMS TO BE SHOWN AT "Y"

The films are entitled "Basketball Today" and "Shooting in Basketball" and fully cover all the new rules and other phases of the popular indoor sport.

EXPERTS WILL VOTE ON CONN-LOUIS BOUT

CHICAGO, Dec. 3. (INS)—Chicago fight promotor Frank E. Harmon is going to give Billy Conn a chance to achieve what he failed to accomplish in two championship fights with world heavyweight king Joe Louis.

Louis and Conn are scheduled to fight a 6-round exhibition Dec. 10 in Chicago International Amphitheater. Officially, there is no decision in an exhibition. Knockouts are infrequently because the contestants wear "pillows"—14-ounce gloves that are hard to hurt with.

But Harmon said today he's going to have a decision in his production. The promoter will poll ringside sportswriters and radio sportscasters for their verdict on the fisticuffs.

The experts' opinions will be tabulated and Harmon will announce the result from the ring.

Denver Loses AAU Cage Tournament To Oklahoma City

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Forty swimming records were approved, boxing rules were modified to reduce injuries and championship sites for 1949 were selected today as delegates to the 60th National AAU Convention got down to serious business.

A day filled with committee hearings, behind-the-scenes maneuvering and a few disappointments for rejected tournament seekers also produced these major developments:

1. San Francisco was selected as the site of the 1949 convention, to be held Dec. 1, 2 and 3.

2. The track and field committee voted to award the 1949 meet to Fresno, Calif., and the decathlon championships to Tulare, Calif., home town of Olympic Titlist Bob Mathias.

3. The basketball committee decided that the 1949 men's cage tournament should go to Oklahoma City despite a determined effort by Denver to entertain the court meet for the 15th straight year.

4. Arrangements were made for numerous individuals and teams from foreign countries to compete in this country in 1949, perhaps including a bobsled crew from Germany which would be the first group from that conquered nation to participate in international athletics since the war.

All committee recommendations still must be approved by the full convention, but the group virtually always follows the decisions of its committees.

If approved, the track and field championships will be held at Fresno, June 24 and 25, and the decathlon at Tulare June 28 and 29.

With 23 district associations represented in the basketball committee meeting, the vote was 14 to 9 in favor of Oklahoma City.

Denver Loses Tourney

Willard N. Greim of Denver, chairman of the committee, said the majority of the members "felt it was time to make a change." Denver had held the basketball tournament since 1935, when it was moved from Kansas City.

Of the 40 swimming records approved by the records committee, including 31 American records, eight of them also have been recognized as world marks.

The eight include two by Joe Verdeur of Philadelphia 2:14.7 for the 200 yard breaststroke, set at Ann Arbor, Mich., last March 27, and 2.30 for the 200 meter breaststroke, set at New Haven, Conn., last June 28.

Other individual world marks approved as American records were 55.4 seconds for the 100 meter freestyle by Alan Ford of Yale at New Haven, last June 29; 59.4 seconds for the 100 yard breaststroke by Keith Carter of Purdue at Lafayette, Ind., last Decfl 12; and 5:03.9 for the 400 meter backstroke by Allen Stack of Yale at New Haven last Feb. 14. The other three were in relay racing.

The foreign relations committee announced that teams from England, France and Switzerland already had accepted invitations to compete in the world bobsled championships at Lake Placid, N. Y., Jan. 29-30 and Feb. 5-6.

Germans Get Permission

Germany, Italy, Norway and Canada also have been invited. Officials said permission had been granted by the U. S. occupation forces in Germany for a team from that country to attend.

The committee also reported that a basketball team from Manila had been invited to play in California, that European boxers would be invited to the Chicago Golden Gloves Tournament and that the AAU will support a plan for a world basketball championship at Nuenos Aires in 1950.

Trojans Battle Fighting Irish At Los Angeles

Undefeated Clemson Meets The Citadel

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—Notre Dame's intersectional clash with Southern California in Memorial Stadium at Los Angeles is a standout in tomorrow's final go-round of the regular college football season.

The Irish from South Bend, ranked second only to Michigan in the Associated Press' final 1948 poll of the nation's grid experts, will be a heavy favorite to trounce the Trojans and wind up their third straight undefeated campaign. A crowd of around 100,000 will witness the game.

The Clemson Tigers, another major unbeaten eleven, also are expected to close in a rash of touchdowns against The Citadel at Charleston, S. C. The Southern Conference leaders were ranked No. 11 in the final national poll.

Alabama and Auburn meet at Birmingham in their first football game since 1907. No one can recall what the two Alabama schools have been mad about all that time.

Five extra curricular, or bowl, games also are on tomorrow's card, as follows:

Missouri Valley vs. Evansville in the Refrigerator Bowl at Evansville, Ind.; John Carroll vs. Canisius in the Great Lakes Bowl at Cleveland; San Francisco State vs. Southern Louisiana Univ. in the Fruit Bowl at San Francisco; Emporia Teachers vs. Southwest Missouri Teachers in the Mo-Kan Bowl at Kansas City and Toledo vs. Oklahoma City in the Glass Bowl at Toledo, O.

Wisconsin Students Petition Referendum In Stuhldreher Case

MADISON, Wis., Dec. 3—(AP)—The University of Wisconsin student board prepared today to receive a campus petition calling for a referendum on the question:

"Should Harry Stuhldreher be retained as head (football) coach?"

The board said it had learned that enough signatures to force a referendum at this time had been collected on a petition circulating on the campus during the past six weeks.

The Badger campus has been rife with comment since Oct. 20, when a banner reading "Goodbye Harry," aimed at Stuhldreher, was unfurled in the stands as Wisconsin lost to Yale, 17-7.

The Badgers finished the season with two victories and seven defeats.

Monaca Boxer Knocked Down In 1st Round

9,814 Witness Match, Jake To Meet Cerdan

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (INS)—Jake LaMotta, veteran New York middleweight, won a 10-round decision over Tommy Yarosz, of Monaca, Pa., in the feature bout at Madison Square Garden tonight.

Although the decision was unanimous, the fight was a close one. The referee and one judge gave five rounds to LaMotta, four to Yarosz, and called one even. The other judge gave seven rounds to LaMotta and three to Yarosz.

Yarosz won his rounds by superior speed and by beating his opponent to the punch. LaMotta, however, never took a backward step and gradually weakened the Pennsylvanian with his body attack.

A crowd of 9,814 paid $22,949 to see the fight.

Scores Over Stanley At Charles Town

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 3 (AP)—J. N. Barnes' Miss Prime turned in her 13th victory of the year in winning the John Winston Heron Purse by two lengths at the Charles Town race track today.

With Jockey Eddie Ballenger up, the four-year-old filly beat out E. P. Price's Stanley, which finished second, and J. H. Hammond's Butler in third. Miss Prime paid a $4.20 mutuel despite the known class of her opposition.

Miss Prime, dubbed "prime ribs of horse," was clocked in .52 4-5 for the four and a half furlongs. The oval was heavy and soggy from the rain which fell last night and this morning.

In the fourth race, Jockey Jimmy Baird and Gasogin took a tumble but both were unhurt. Max Pearson, Baird's agent, cancelled the jockey's remaining mounts today but said he would be back in action tomorow.

That race was won by Sticky Fussy, owned by A. August of Washington, paying $8.60 on a $2 bet.

The daily double today brought $25.40. J. K. Wynkoop's New Hour won the opener at 4.60 and Shangrila Stable's Doctor Jeep annexed the second at $6.60.

Name Cage Captains

EMMITSBURG, Md., Dec. 3. (AP)—Pete Clark of New Brunswick, N. J., and Mike Russo of Huntington, W. Va., have been named co-captains of the Mount St. Mary's basketball team.

Clark, playing his third season for the Mounts, was the second highest scorer in the state last season with 370 points. Russo is known as the "mighty mite," the five-foot, eight-inch guard being noted for his adept dribbling and leech-like play on defense.

Citation Scores In Coast Debut

Wonder Horse Adds $3,100 To Earnings

SAN BRUNO, Cal., Dec. 3—(INS)—Citation made his far western debut today by winning a six-furlong allowance test against four other 3-year-old horses at Tanforan.

The Calumet "wonder horse," ridden by his regular jockey, Eddie Arcaro, added a mere $3,100 to his all-time earnings of $833,350 for this afternoon's effort.

Citation paid $2.20 to win and $2.10 to place. The Calumet entry's presence in the race prohibited any show betting.

Bold Gallant, with Johnny Longden up, was second and paid $2.20.

Barsard was third and Grandpere and M'Dearsy finished in that order in the five horse field.

Citation breezed home a length and a half in front of Bold Gallant. His winning time for the six furlong test, called the Challenge Purse, was 1:12, one second off the Tanforan track record. Citation's time was considered exceptionally good because the track, after a heavy morning rain, was muddy.

Coaker Triplett Tops Association Baisemen

NEW YORK, Dec. 3. (INS)—President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League announced today that Buffalo outfielder Coaker Triplett led the circuit in batting in 1948 with a .353 average.

Toronto's Eddie Sanicki, who hit 21 homers, led in runs-batted-in with 107. His batting avergae was only .236.

DETROIT TIGERS RELEASE BENTON

DETROIT, Dec. 3 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers today announced the unconditional release of big Alton Benton, veteran right-handed pitcher.

The 35-year-old Benton, a veteran of 10 years in the major leagues, was passed on waivers by all major league clubs.

The big hurler, used mostly in recent years in relief roles, came to the Tigers in 1938 after serving a few years in Philadelphia under Connie Mack.

The ancient Briton carried a protective sprinter of iron in his pocket when he went out at sundown to drive the cattle and swine home from the goblin-haunted thickets, it being thought that iron was a protection from such.

Coach Louis "Red" Klotz's high-flying Cumberland Dukes who have amassed a total of 177 points in registering three straight victories, will go after win No. 2 in the All-American Basketball League Sunday night when they do battle with Walt Miller's Altoona (Pa.) Flyers in SS. Peter and Paul gym at 9 o'clock.

Altoona will have practically the same team that gained an even break with the Dukes in four games last season. The Pennsylvanians won the first two games of the series, 53-52 and 58-40 and Cumberland grabbed the last two, 75-66 and 76-61.

Miller Coaches Flyers

Walt Miller, one-time Duquesne University star, is player-coach of the Flyers. Other members of the visiting squad are Bobby Artman, "Mo" Becker, Jimmy Atkins, Ed Strall, Mike Bytzura, Al Bair, Ed Janicki, Don Asmonga and Ed Graham. Asmonga, incidentally, was an outstanding pitcher in the American Association last season and his showing with the Louisville Colonels has earned him a trial with the Boston Red Sox in 1949.

The Dukes launched their league campaign with a 61 to 47 win over the Pittsburgh Merchants here last Sunday. In games with independent foes Coach Klotz's outfit defeated St. Francis College and the Kansas City Stars. Altoona dropped an overtime thriller to the Wheeling Blues this week by the score of 77-68 after battling the West Virginians to a 66-66 tie in the regulation game.

Dukes Impress Fans

The 1948-49 edition of the Dukes has made a favorable impression on local basketball fans and another good turnout is expected for tomorrow night's game.

League officials assigned by Commissioner Charles "Chick" Davies will handle the contest.

There will be a preliminary game at 7:30 o'clock between the Cumberland Amvets and the Original Revenuers.

Bob Whip, business manager of the Dukes, announced yesterday that coaches and members of the LaSalle High School and Ridgeley High School football teams will be guests of the local management at tomorrow's game.

Probable starting lineups for the main contest:

Altoona	Pos.	Cumberland
Artman	f.	Pence
Bair	f.	Bell
Miller	c.	Oberhaus
Bytzura	g.	Orndorff
Becker	g.	Geatz

Reserves
Altoona — Asmonga, Atkins, Graham, Strall, Janicki.
Cumberland — Klotz, Frizzell, Johnson, Day, Clevenger.

Miss Prime Cops 13th Win Of Year

Scores Over Stanley At Charles Town

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., Dec. 3 (AP)—J. N. Barnes' Miss Prime turned in her 13th victory of the year in winning the John Winston Heron Purse by two lengths at the Charles Town race track today.

With Jockey Eddie Ballenger up, the four-year-old filly beat out E. P. Price's Stanley, which finished second, and J. H. Hammond's Butler in third. Miss Prime paid a $4.20 mutuel despite the known class of her opposition.

Miss Prime, dubbed "prime ribs of horse," was clocked in :52 4-5 for the four and a half furlongs. The oval was heavy and soggy from the rain which fell last night and this morning.

In the fourth race, Jockey Jimmy Baird and Gasogin took a tumble but both were unhurt. Max Pearson, Baird's agent, cancelled the jockey's remaining mounts today but said he would be back in action tomorow.

That race was won by Sticky Fussy, owned by A. August of Washington, paying $8.60 on a $2 bet.

The daily double today brought $25.40. J. K. Wynkoop's New Hour won the opener at 4.60 and Shangrila Stable's Doctor Jeep annexed the second at $6.60.

Name Cage Captains

EMMITSBURG, Md., Dec. 3. (AP)—Pete Clark of New Brunswick, N. J., and Mike Russo of Huntington, W. Va., have been named co-captains of the Mount St. Mary's basketball team.

Clark, playing his third season for the Mounts, was the second highest scorer in the state last season with 370 points. Russo is known as the "mighty mite," the five-foot, eight-inch guard being noted for his adept dribbling and leech-like play on defense.

Quantico Marines Win East Coast Grid Title

QUANTICO, Va., Dec. 3 (AP)—Quantico's Marines sloshed through the rain and mud to an 18-0 victory over the Little Creek Amphibs today to win the All-Navy east coast football championship for the second straight year.

The triumph gave the Marines the right to play the Marine Corps Recruit Depot of San Diego, Calif., for the All-Navy title in Norfolk, Va., next Saturday.

Pick Bowl Opponents

LAFAYETTE, La., Dec. 3 (AP)—The University of Wichita and Hardin-Simmons University will meet here Dec. 30 in the first annual Camellia Bowl football game, bowl President R. L. Browne announced today.

Announcement of the selection came after two weeks of dickering, highlighted by the University of Dayton's last-minute refusal to play in the event.

Citation Scores In Coast Debut

Wonder Horse Adds $3,100 To Earnings

SAN BRUNO, Cal., Dec. 3—(INS)—Citation made his far western debut today by winning a six-furlong allowance test against four other 3-year-old horses at Tanforan.

The Calumet "wonder horse," ridden by his regular jockey, Eddie Arcaro, added a mere $3,100 to his all-time earnings of $833,350 for this afternoon's effort.

Barsard was third and Grandpere and M'Dearsy finished in that order in the five horse field.

Citation breezed home a length and a half in front of Bold Gallant. His winning time for the six furlong test, called the Challenge Purse, was 1:12, one second off the Tanforan track record. Citation's time was considered exceptionally good because the track, after a heavy morning rain, was muddy.

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3—(INS)—You can judge a producer only by the pictures he puts out. And I'm going to say that Darryl Zanuck hits a phenomenal batting average at 20th Century-Fox.

Louella Parsons

He knows what Mr. and Mrs. Public and their children want in the line of entertainment — and he gives it to them.

One of the best pictures I have seen in a long time is "Letter To Three Wives." So when I heard that darryl is againteaming Linda Darnell and Paul Douglas in a Nunnally Johnson original, "Everybody Does It," I thought to myself, "darn smart these Swiss," meaning Mr. Z, of course—or didn't you know?

Bing Crosby, who seems to win every award put out by the various magazines each year, has just signed a new contract with Henry Ginsberg at Paramount.

Bing has always had the right to make outside pictures. He still retains that right, but all his "outside" pictures will be made exclusively for Paramount studio. Some of his pictures will, of course, be a partnership between Bing and the studio, with the crooner sharing in the profits.

The rest of the 18 for which he contracted will be made directly for Paramount. This is one of the best deals ever made by a studio for a star, and credit goes to Henry for keeping Bing at the studio.

• — • — •

S. Sylvan Simon, who is producing Rita's next epic, is now scouting locations and says there will be no more delays on getting "Lona."

I suppose Rita will fly in to spend Christmas with her little daughter, Rebecca, because the company will be working through the holidays. Bill Holden will also have to fly in to see Brenda and the children for he is playing opposite Rita.

• — • — •

Whoops—Just as I expected—up comes the television clause in the movie contracts, and I don't mean actors.

Dimitri Tiomkin has just sold Robert Golden an original symphony for "Barnstorming," the Frank Bacon story, for $10,000. And as though that were not a big enough chunk of dough-re-mi, Tiomkin reserves the publishing and television rights.

This is the first case I've known of a piece of music looking into the future. Who says television is just around the corner?

• — • — •

Any day now Barbara Hutton's brother-in-law, Youka Troubetskoy, is getting married. His bride-to-be is Louise Rose Marie Reachi.

Bing Crosby is host today to the Notre Dame football team, and you can bet all the young Crosbys who aren't in school will be on hand.

Mark Stevens is in a bad way. He's got flu and he hurt his foot.

Marcus Goodrich's mother, who has been seriously ailing in San Antonio, is well again and Olivia De Havilland and Marcus leave there next week for home.

Robert Ryan's mother, Mrs. Mabel Ryan, who underwent a major operation recently, is able to come home from the hospital.

General Hap Arnold is on the board of governors of the new Palm Desert resort, and talk is that he's also financially interested.

Edward J. Flynn, head of CARE, says Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is a fine public relations ambassador because he spent his time in Europe telling the story of America an CARE.

Catherine Lee, who was once th sparkle in John Conte's eye, is devoting her spare time to Bill Callahan. They are the dance team in "As The Girls Go," the Mike Todd show.

That's all today.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 3—(INS)—You can judge a producer only by the pictures he puts out. And I'm going to say that Darryl Zanuck hits a phenomenal batting average at 20th Century-Fox.

Louella Parsons

He knows what Mr. and Mrs. Public and their children want in the line of entertainment — and he gives it to them.

One of the best pictures I have seen in a long time is "Letter To Three Wives." So when I heard that darryl is againt e a m i n g Linda Darnell and Paul Douglas in a Nunnally Johnson original, "Everybody Does It," I thought to myself, "darr smart these Swiss," meaning Mr. Z, of course—or didn't you know?

Nunnally, who is just completing his story, hopes to have it ready for late April production after Paul finishes "It Happens In the Spring," a previous assignment.

Bing Crosby, who seems to win every award put out by the various magazines each year, has just signed a new contract with Henry Ginsberg at Paramount.

Bing has always had the right to make outside pictures. He still retains that right, but all his "outside" pictures will be made exclusively for Paramount studio. Some of his pictures will, of course, be a partnership between Bing and the studio, with the crooner sharing in the profits.

The rest of the 18 for which he contracted will be made directly for Paramount. This is one of the best deals ever made by a studio for a star, and credit goes to Henry for keeping Bing at the studio.

• — • — •

Chatter in Hollywood: Aly Khan has left, but it's just as well, because Rita Hayworth had to leave today for Nagobes,Arizona, for location on her picture, "Lona Hanson."

S. Sylvan Simon, who is producing Rita's next epic, is now scouting locations and says there will be no more delays on getting "Lona."

I suppose Rita will fly in to spend Christmas with her little daughter, Rebecca, because the company will be working through the holidays. Bill Holden will also have to fly in to see Brenda and the children for he is playing opposite Rita.

• — • — •

Whoops—Just as I expected—up comes the television clause in the movie contracts, and I don't mean actors.

Dimitri Tiomkin has just sold Robert Golden an original symphony for "Barnstorming," the Frank Bacon story, for $10,000. And as though that were not a big enough chunk of dough-re-mi, Tiomkin reserves the publishing and television rights.

This is the first case I've known of a piece of music looking into the future. Who says television is just around the corner?

• — • — •

Any day now Barbara Hutton's brother-in-law, Youka Troubetskoy, is getting married. His bride-to-be is Louise Rose Marie Reachi.

Bing Crosby is host today to the Notre Dame football team, and you can bet all the young Crosbys who aren't in school will be on hand.

Buddy Fogerson, who spent Thanksgiving with Greer Garson and her mother at Pebble Beach, is in town and they were a dinner twosome.

Mark Stevens is in a bad way. He's got flu and he hurt his foot.

Marcus Goodrich's mother, who has been seriously ailing in San Antonio, is well again and Olivia De Havilland and Marcus leave there next week for home.

Robert Ryan's mother, Mrs. Mabel Ryan, who underwent a major operation recently, is able to come home from the hospital.

General Hap Arnold is on the board of governors of the new Palm Desert resort, and talk is that he's also financially interested.

Edward J. Flynn, head of CARE, says Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is a fine public relations ambassador because he spent his time in Europe telling the story of America an CARE.

Catherine Lee, who was once th sparkle in John Conte's eye, is devoting her spare time to Bill Callahan. They are the dance team in "As The Girls Go," the Mike Todd show.

Stock Market Ends Up Ahead After Late Buying Replaces Indecision

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—The stock market ended in higher ground today after late buying replaced early indecision.

Final prices were ahead fractions to around two points and just about at the best levels of the day. Buying was aggressive enough to wipe out or trim many early losses and to extend small gains.

Volume picked up momentum as prices advanced but at 1,100,000 shares was still not enough to match Thursday's 1,210,000. Turnover has topped 1,000,000 shares every day this week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .4 of one point to 64. Of the 1,033 issues which sold 474 advanced and 318 declined.

Among the prominent gainers were Standard Oil (NJ), at 72⅞, Gulf Oil 68¾, United Aircraft 24½, Douglas Aircraft 49½, Texas Pacific Coal & Oil 24½, Texas Pacific Land Trust 45¾, General Motors 57⅞, Chrysler 53, National Steel 90, U. S. Steel 71⅜, Bethlehem Steel 33⅜, Firestone Tire 44⅛, Montgomery Ward 57⅝, Sears Roebuck 39⅛, Consolidated Natural Gas 40¾, American Can 79⅜, General Electric 38⅜, American Tobacco 62½, and Radio Corp. 13.

Brewing Corp. of America took a five-point spill on the only sale of the day. The price dropped to 31, a new low for the year. A couple of weeks ago directors omitted a dividend.

Smaller losers included Studebaker, Goodrich, Woolworth, Glenn Martin, American Telephone, Johns-Manville, Owens-Illinois, Santa Fe, and Paramount Pictures.

A few bond issues climbed a little over a point, and a few eased that much. But price changes were largely restricted to fractions.

Missing Son Hoax Exposed By Ontario Police

John Krajnak, Windsor, Ont., butcher, is being held for investigation in the Canadian city after Detective Chris Paget uncovered a hoax being played on a Kempton, W. Va., family. Paget said Krajnak was posing as a long-lost son, but relatives are not pressing charges.

The detective said Krajnak telephoned an uncle in Kempton, Tuesday and identified himself as John Krajnak, the uncle's missing son, and claimed to have regained his memory after a six-year, war-caused lapse.

Paget quoted Krajnak as saying he made the call because he wanted to "renew contact" with a branch of the family he had not seen since 1937.

The hoax was exposed, according to the detective, when Mrs. John Krajnak, widow of the missing soldier, and Helene Krajnak, a sister, confronted Krajnak at Windsor Wednesday night and said he was not the missing man.

He went overseas with the U. S. Army but deserted because he was "underfed and poorly clothed." He joined the 48th Highlanders of Canada and was under a Major Westfall. He was captured during a diversionary parachute raid on the Dutch coast at the time of the Dieppe raid in August, 1942. He was shot in the throat and ankle, lost his memory and was taken by the Germans to a hospital in Prague.

He was set free in 1946 and flown to a hospital in London. Later he spent nearly a year in Christie Street Military Hospital in Toronto. His memory returned to him here Tuesday night.

There is no record of a Canadian raid on Holland in 1942. Former officers of the 48th Highlanders said in Toronto they could recall no officer named Westfall and they remembered no raid such as Krajnak described. Officials at the Christie Street hospital said they had no record of a patient named John Krajnak.

Local Sailor In Bedford Fight

A Cumberland sailor, identified as Harold R. Shives, was one of two 20-year-old men required to pay costs and fines amounting to $136 in Bedford, Pa., for participating in a street fracas there Sunday.

Authorities listed the other man as Harold Shirer, Buffalo Mills, Pa., and said both were fined $10 and costs for disorderly conduct. The remainder of the money was to pay for a broken display window at the Bedford Youth Center. Justice of the Peace H. Cyril Bingham presided.

Police said Shives, on leave from the Navy, and Shirer were walking west on Pitt Street when they met Jack Gardner, Bedford. Apparently without provocation the pair attacked Gardner, witnesses reported, adding that Gardner was shoved through the window while defending himself.

Shives and Shirer fled but Officer H. A. Clark, of the Bedford Police, nabbed the former near the fairground as he was attempting to hitch-hike a ride to Buffalo Mills. Shirer was taken into custody later.

No charges were preferred against Gardner, who escaped injury when a shower of glass crashed around him.

Stock Market Ends Up Ahead After Late Buying Replaces Indecision

NEW YORK, Dec. 3 (AP)—The stock market ended in higher ground today after late buying replaced early indecision.

Final prices were ahead fractions to around two points and just about at the best levels of the day. Buying was aggressive enough to wipe out or trim many early losses and to extend small gains.

Volume picked up momentum as prices advanced but at 1,100,000 shares was still not enough to match Thursday's 1,210,000. Turnover has topped 1,000,000 shares every day this week.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced .4 of one point to 64. Of the 1,033 issues which sold 374 advanced and 318 declined.

Among the prominent gainers were Standard Oil (NJ), at 72⅞, Gulf Oil 68¼, United Aircraft 24½, Douglas Aircraft 49½, Texas Pacific Coal & Oil 24½, Texas Pacific Land Trust 45¾, General Motors 57⅞, Chrysler 53, National Steel 90, U. S. Steel 71⅜, Bethlehem Steel 33⅜, Firestone Tire 44⅛, Montgomery Ward 57⅝, Sears Roebuck 39⅛, Consolidated Natural Gas 40¾, American Can 79⅜, General Electric 38⅜, American Tobacco 62½, and Radio Corp. 13.

Brewing Corp. of America took a five-point spill on the only sale of the day. The price dropped to 31, a new low for the year. A couple of weeks ago directors omitted a dividend.

Smaller losers included Studebaker, Goodrich, Woolworth, Glenn Martin, American Telephone, Johns-Manville, Owens-Illinois, Santa Fe, and Paramount Pictures.

A few bond issues climbed a little over a point, and a few eased that much. But price changes were largely restricted to fractions.

Missing Son Hoax Exposed By Ontario Police

John Krajnak, Windsor, Ont., butcher, is being held for investigation in the Canadian city after Detective Chris Paget uncovered a hoax being played on a Kempton, W. Va., family. Paget said Krajnak was posing as a long-lost son, but relatives are not pressing charges.

The detective said Krajnak telephoned an uncle in Kempton, Tuesday and identified himself as John Krajnak, the uncle's missing son, and claimed to have regained his memory after a six-year, war-caused lapse.

Paget quoted Krajnak as saying he made the call because he wanted to "renew contact" with a branch of the family he had not seen since 1937.

The hoax was exposed, according to the detective, when Mrs. John Krajnak, widow of the missing soldier, and Helene Krajnak, a sister, confronted Krajnak at Windsor Wednesday night and said he was not the missing man.

Krajnak's story on the telepohne was this:

He went overseas with the U. S. Army but deserted because he was "underfed and poorly clothed." He joined the 48th Highlanders of Canada and was under a Major Westfall. He was captured during a diversionary parachute raid on the Dutch coast at the time of the Dieppe raid in August, 1942. He was shot in the throat and ankle, lost his memory and was taken by the Germans to a hospital in Prague.

He was set free in 1946 and flown to a hospital in London. Later he spent nearly a year in Christie Street Military Hospital in Toronto. His memory returned to him here Tuesday night.

There is no record of a Canadian raid on Holland in 1942. Former officers of the 48th Highlanders said in Toronto they could recall no officer named Westfall and they remembered no raid such as Krajnak described. Officials at the Christie Street hospital said they had no record of a patient named John Krajnak.

Local Sailor In Bedford Fight

A Cumberland sailor, identified as Harold R. Shives, was one of two 20-year-old men required to pay costs and fines amounting to $136 in Bedford, Pa., for participating in a street fracas there Sunday.

Authorities listed the other man as Harold Shirer, Buffalo Mills, Pa., and said both were fined $10 and costs for disorderly conduct. The remainder of the money was to pay for a broken display window at the Bedford Youth Center. Justice of the Peace H. Cyril Bingham presided.

Police said Shives, on leave from the Navy, and Shirer were walking west on Pitt Street when they met Jack Gardner, Bedford. Apparently without provocation the pair attacked Gardner, witnesses reported, adding that Gardner was shoved through the window while defending himself.

Shives and Shirer fled but Officer H. A. Clark, of the Bedford Police, nabbed the former near the fairground as he was attempting to hitch-hike a ride to Buffalo Mills. Shirer was taken into custody later.

No charges were preferred against Gardner, who escaped injury when a shower of glass crashed around him.

County Road Engineer Job Poses Problem

State Requirements For Funds Cited

Under Maryland law providing for the distribution of funds to counties for construction and maintenance of certain roads as the State Roads Commission shall find, the county must employ, or give reasonable assurance that it will employ a roads engineer having a degree in civil engineering and experience in building roads, or one who has had at least 10 years of practical experience in an executive and supervisory capacity in building roads.

For the past year, Allegany County has been without a county engineer. John J. Smith, Mt. Savage, who has worked on county roads as a laborer, truck driver, foreman and supervisor, has been serving as acting county engineer. When Albert Paye resigned, no one was appointed to succeed him.

At a meeting of the County Commissioners last Tuesday, Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the board, made a motion that Smith be appointed county engineer at a salary of $350 per month. Commissioner James Holmes objected, questioning Smith's qualifications under the law.

No vote was taken on the motion as it was not seconded, and the matter was tabled until yesterday.

At the regular meeting yesterday, no action was taken but it was indicated the question will come up again at next Tuesday's meeting.

Attorney Checks Law

John T. Fey, attorney to the board, submitted an opinion yesterday in which he said, "Having been advised by the County Commissioners that Smith has had 10 years practical experience constructing roads in a supervisory and executive capacity, it is my opinion that he is qualified to serve as roads engineer for Allegany County."

Fey referred to several sections of the Maryland code relative to requirements for a county engineer. He quoted as follows:

"Chapter 560, Acts of 1947, Article 89B, section 158 provides for the distribution of moneys to the county and the delegation of construction and maintenance of certain roads as the State Roads Commission shall find that such county, or is reasonably assured of obtaining the services of a roads engineer having a degree in civil engineering and experience in building roads, or who has had at least ten years practical experience in constructing roads in a supervisory and executive capacity.

"Although the office of county roads engineer is not specifically provided by statute such an office does exist by necessary implication and more particularly as a result of the provisions of the above chapter 560, of the Acts of 1947.

Makes Further Probe

Last night, Fey said he had pursued the question farther and finds that Article 75½ of the State Code which relates to the qualifications for professional engineers, provides that no one can carry the title of engineer, give advice, specifications or any opinions as to compliance etc., unless he is a registered engineer.

To become a registered engineer, Fey said, an individual must have 12 years of practical experience or must be a graduate engineer of a recognized school of engineering. In either event, he must be approved by a state board set up for this purpose and properly certified.

Fey said that in his opinion stating that Smith is qualified, he referred only to the man's experience and evidenced ability as a road superintendent. It would appear, he declared, that a county engineer under the state law is on thing, and a county roads superintendent as interpreted by the board is something else.

In any event, a search of the minutes of the County Commissioners reveals that Smith has not been formally approved as county engineer, and members of the board are divided on the appointment. Wilkinson made the motion, but there was no second and no vote.

Could Lose Road Funds

Numerous public officials and private individuals familiar with the situation are aware that the County Commissioners have included an estimate of $200,000 in their levy and budget as the amount expected from the State of Maryland for roads.

This fund is earmarked for roads by the state and county, and under state law must be spent in a certain manner, under qualified supervision. These qualifications are set up by law.

It is pointed out that if Allegany County continues to operate without a certified, qualified or registered engineer, under the law, the State of Maryland will be obliged to withhold the $200,000 roads funds this year, and other funds in subsequent years, until the county conforms with regulations.

SOMETHING OLD, SOMETHING NEW-- Time brings changes and this picture shows some of the changes in the men and methods used in fighting forest fires in Maryland over a period of nearly 40 years. At the left is Henry H. Fazenbaker, 76, near Lonaconing, the oldest fire warden in the employ of the Maryland Department of State Forests and Parks. He has served 37 years. At the right is Thomas Loar, 43, of near Midland, who has been a fire warden only a few weeks and is the youngest in service. Warden Fazenbaker is holding two of the crude brush rakes used when he started with the department and he is standing back of the crude and simple equipment available for fire-fighting 50 years ago. Loar is standing behind an average amount of equipment available each warden under the present set-up, which is holding forest fire losses to a bare minimum.

County's Oldest Forest Fire Warden Recalls State's 5,000-Acre Blaze

Says Carelessness Causes Most Loss

"We haven't seen the best yet," Henry H. Fazenbaker, 76-year old Lonaconing forest warden, said yesterday as he compared new fire-fighting equipment with the crude tools and devices used 37 years ago when he was first appointed a fire warden.

Fazenbaker, the oldest warden in service in this district, and Thomas Loar, 43, Midland, the youngest warden in years of service, met yesterday in the office of William H. Parr, district forester, and looked over some new equipment.

Today, a fire-fighter in the woods is equipped with a fast action Indian pump he can carry on his back, a brush hook, a double bladed axe, a cross-cut saw, a couple of brush rakes, a shovel, a cap and lamp, and various pieces of other hand equipment, plus automatic pumps, tanks on trucks, tractors and other devices designed for combatting fires in the woods.

Thirty-seven years ago, when Fazenbaker first started fighting fires, an Indian pump was available for an entire crew, but it was not as good as the modern type. Men called up to fight fire had to provide their own tools and lamps. The most practical piece of equipment was a large stick with half a donzen prongs on the end that could be used as a rake.

Fazenbaker viewed the changes optimistically and said, "These things are all pretty nice and help do the job faster and easier. But some day these will be out-moded too. You know we are still making progress in everything in this country."

He recalled some of the problems of fire-fighting of the past half a century and said, "Water is now, as it was then, the big problem. Only today, we have faster means of transporting it, better pumps, and better ways of carrying it."

The worst blaze the older warden ever fought, he said, "was in 1931, when fire burned over 5,000 acres on Dan's Mountain." He said, "700 men fought this fire, and it started in July, burned three weeks or more and wasn't controlled until sometime in August." Parr reminded him that this was "Maryland's worst woods fire."

Fazenbaker said, "Yes, I guess it was. We haven't had one as bad since, although there have been some pretty hot ones."

Asked what causes most forest fires, Fazenbaker replied without hesitation. "Smokers." then he explained, "It isn't that people smoke, it's just that they are careless where they throw matches, cigarets and dump their pipes."

Fazenbaker said, "We used to have trouble with boys going into the woods and building fires, but youngsters aren't as bad as they used to be. The department's education program on fire prevention helps and the youngsters seem to understand better than they did 25 years ago."

"The worst bunch are the hunters," he exclaimed. "And they are the ones who should be the most careful, because if they burn down the woods, how can they expect to find any game?"

Fazenbaker said he recalls many stands of high grade timber in Allegany County and has seen much of it cut wantonly and carelessly. Many fine acres have been destroyed by fire and carelessness, he said, but now under a controlled cutting program and the state's general reforestation program, "Timber is coming back."

He predicted that in 25 years or so, this county will have plenty of timber, if everyone continues to cooperate.

"But," he warned, "Fire is the

Striker's Son Is Injured In Yard Of Rome Home

TWUA Asks Judge To Close Plant

ROME, Ga., Dec. 3 (AP)—A ten-year-old son of a striker at the Celanses Corporation's big rayon plant here was punctured with birdshot today as he chopped kindling wood in the back yard.

Floyd County Deputy Sheriff Frank Russell reported Pete Sealock, about 35, a Celanese worker, was jailed for the shooting, charged with assault with intent to murder.

The child is David Atkins, son of Robert Atkins. Dr. Raiden Bellinger at the county hospital said he removed 15 shot from David's hips, back and shoulders.

The shooting was the second incident of the day involving firearms at the Celanese Village. Earlier, a man identified by Russell as George Garrett, also a Celanese worker, was arrested on charges of pointing a pistol at others on the picket line.

Russell said 19 strikers obtained warrants against Garrett from Justice of the Peace T. E. Edwards. Garrett was released under bonds of $1,900—$100 for each charge—to await action by the January grand jury.

The Celanese strike began on Aug. 14, after members of the United Textile Workers of America (CIO) demanded a 15 cents an hour wage increase and the company offered eight cents. The minimum pay rate was about 92 cents an hour and the average rate approximately $1.21.

Complaints from both sides are now pending before the National Labor Relations Board.

James A. Blackwell, Cumberland, national TWUA representative, said last night in Rome that Sealock's arrest took place as an estimated 500 angry strikers surrounded the home where Sealock took refuge before deputy sheriffs whisked him away.

The strikers later appeared in the city of Rome in larger numbers and packed the TWUA Union Hall demanding action.

$12,000 Sought In Coal Company Dispute

A suit for $12,000 was docketed in Circuit Court yesterday for The Potomac Big Vein Georges Creek Coal Company, and the Potomac Coal Company of Allegany County, against Karl J. Nickel, Daniel McKenzie, George F. McKenzie and the McNic Construction Company.

William C. Walsh and Charles Z. Heskett are attorneys for the plaintiffs, and explain in their declaration that last August 20, when the plaintiff threatened to sue the defendant for removing coal by stripping from property of the plaintiff, attorneys agreed to settle the claim for $9,250.

A copy of a letter from William M. Somerville, attorney, to Walsh indicated that such a settlement would be made, with $5,000 payable August 27 and the balance on the basis of $500 per month beginning October 1.

Walsh and Heskett say their clients have not received any payment and filed the suit for $12,000.

Health, Physical Education To Be Lecture Topic

Dean J. H. Fox To Discuss Program

The Allegany County Board of Education will move a step nearer in developing adequate and sound education in health and physical education with two meetings planned for December 6 and January 10. The program is for all teaching personnel.

Dean James Harold Fox, Department of Education, George Washington University, Washington, D. C., will open the lectures when he appears at Allegany High School Monday at 7:30 p. m. Dr. Alice Kelliher, Columbia University, will be the January speaker.

In announcing the series of meeting, Dr. Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, said at least two other lecturers of outstanding achievement in educational fields will appear here shortly. He did not give the dates.

The present series is a followup to the program which was undertaken earlier this year. It aims at revising the health and physical education system in Allegany County schools.

Dr. Kopp said the program is so broad that it involves virtually every aspect of child development either directly or indirectly. Consideration will have to be given to the intellectual, social, emotional and biological aspects of human growth, Dr. Kopp declared.

When the reorganization of curriculum is begun, Dr. Kopp said, it will be so comprehensive that it will be impossible not to include virtually all of the teaching staff. For this reason all teachers will attend the lectures. Only principals and physical education instructors attended the original meetings.

It is the purpose of the lecture series, according to Dr. Kopp, to re-emphasize to all teacher personnel—teachers, principals and supervisors—the point of view that education cannot be "compartmentalized," because what affects one aspect of the human makeup affects conditions, in measure, of every other aspect.

He explained "that while all of us know this to be true, we do not always govern our educational practices as if such were the cause."

Man Ordered From City Twice Back

Joseph Koelker, who was ordered to leave the city on two occasions this week, was back in City Jail last night. The only charge was "held for Trial Magistrates Court."

Earlier this week, Koelker, described by police as a vagrant, was ordered to leave the city after questioning in the office of the State's Attorney's office. He was arrested again several hours later and given a hearing in Trial Magistrates Court.

At the hearing Koelker was given a suspended sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction on condition he leave the city. Police said he was arrested early last night.

He will be taken to Trial Magistrates Court this morning.

Youth Injured When Truck Hits Bycycle

John Mattingly, 18, of 313 Caroline Street, was treated at Memorial Hospital yesterday at about 3:30 p. m. for a left knee injured when his bicycle was hit by a truck.

Attaches said the accident happened on Wineow Street and identified the driver as W. R. Dicken, 1000 Valley Avenue. Dicken said the boy came from behind a truck before he could see him.

Fifteen-year-old Mary Louise King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. King, 692 Gephart Drive, was admitted to Allegany Hospital last night for observation after being hit by an automobile on Baltimore Street.

Weather

For those who still retain their faith in the weatherman, today will be fair and warmer. Skeptics will take what they get without surprise. Yesterday's figures seem to bear out the prediction, though. Late last night, the thermometer read 42 degrees, only one degree below the maximum temperature. The low reading was a fairly high 33 degrees and there's little need to add that there was 0.31 inches of rain. Numerous wet feet, umbrellas and raincoats bear mute testimony to that.

State Tuberculosis Association X-Rayed 8,000 In This County

Some 8,000 residents of Allegany County received chest X-rays when the portable units of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association visited this area last month, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, announced yesterday.

He said reports from the mass survey are beginning to be received here and that there is evidence the number of follow-up cases will be large.

About 5,000 of the persons who took the X-rays were from Cumberland and the other 3,000 from other communities of the county.

The survey was made possible by funds from the annual sale of Christmas Seals. William J. Edwards, campaign chairman and president of the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association, said 80 per cent of the funds raised remain here for work such as the survey and the operation of the chest clinics operated by the County Health Department.

During the first 11 months of 1948, the county clinic has given 1,062 X-rays. At least 950 of these persons have had consultations with Dr. I. B. Lyon and Dr. W. F. Williams, who have conducted the clinics.

Hardy County Youth Shot By Mathias Pastor

Lynn David Swisher Victim Of Accident

Hardy County's second hunting fatility in less than three weeks was a 21-year-old Baker, W. Va., youth who was fatally wounded yesterday when he was accidentally shot by Rev. Guy F. Ludwig, Mathias, about five miles west of Wardensville on state Route 55, according to West Virginia State Police.

The victim, Lynn David Swisher, had strayed from his position on a hunting stand when Rev. Ludwig sighted the white badge on his cap moving behind a rock, members of the hunting party said. Thinking the moving object was a deer's mouth, the minister shot Swisher through the left side of the head with a 30-30 Winchester Carbine rifle.

Cpl. E. L. Rousch, of the Moorefield State Police, who investigated, said the top of the back of the youth's head was completely blown off. He said the acident happened about 9 a. m. and Swisher only lived about 15 or 20 minutes afterward ,never regaining consciousness.

Dr. A. D. McCoy, Wardensville physician, was called to the scene but arrived some time after the youth had died. Besides State Police, Hardy County Prosecuting Attorney W. D. McCauley was notified.

Cpl. Rousch explained that the foggy morning and a growth of grapevines in that section, which is about 30 yards north of a water fountain between Baker and Wardensville, would make it difficult to distinguish objects clearly. At the time of the accident, Rev. Ludwig was about 110 feet away from Swisher.

Both Cpl. Rousch and McCauley indicated there would be no inquest because the acidental nature of the shooting. Trooper J .W. Davis also investigated.

Swisher lived with and was employed by Harold Ludwig who owns a chicken farm and concrete block plant about four miles east of Baker. Ludwig is a first cousin of the Mathias minister.

The dead hunter was unmarried and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Swisher, Rio.

Rev. Ludwig has been pastor of the Mathias Brethren Church for over 15 years and formerly taught in Hardy County schools.

Spuds Boost Price Of Market Basket

Spuds, upon which the government spent some $40,000,000 through its price support program last year, contributed to a 15-cent increase in the Chamber of Commerce food basket this week.

A 10-cent increase in the price of a peck of potatoes to 55 cents and a five-cent boost in butter prices to 77 cents upped the cost of the 15 items to $9.38 in local stores this week, according to prices released by the Chamber. The same 15 items cost $9.23 a week ago.

Three To Attend State AAUW Meet

Three members of Cumberland Chapter of the American Association of University Women will attend a business meeting of the Maryland State Board from 10:30 a. m. until 4:30 p. m. today in Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Gilbert Miller, president of the local branch will attend with two members of the State Board, Mrs. E. Milton Jenkins, Frostburg, treasurer, and Mrs. T. M. Andrews, chairman of the social studies committee.

Veteran Units To Meet County Delegates Here

Public Session Is Set For City Hall

The recommendation that Maryland Veterans of World War II be paid a state bonus is expected to be the principal topic at a meeting of veteran organization representatives and the Allegany County Delegation to the General Assembly at a meeting in City Hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the delegation, said the meeting was requested by veteran organization representatives, but added it also will be open to the public. Other business will be considered if brought up, Whitworth declared.

The six-man delegation will hear recommendations and accept for study suggestions about a bonus for Maryland veterans, but will not commit their stand on the subject, according to Whitworth. The veteran groups have gone on record as favoring a bonus for servicemen.

Representatives of the veteran units are expected to explain their opinions on the bonus as well as suggest ways that the money can be raised and the terms on which it should be alloted to the servicemen.

The meeting will likely be the only public appearance of the delegation in body before the General Assembly convenes in January.

Earlier, there were indications that the delegates would meet with the Mayor and City Council in an afternoon session, but members of both groups said such a caucaus was not scheduled.

Whitworth said the municipal body usually meets with the delegates in Annapolis after the state session is underway. The meetings are usually of a private nature, he declared, with controversial matters being aired before the public prior to the introduction of such measures in the assembly.

County Officials To Attend Meeting

Members of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, their attorney and clerk will attend a meeting of the Western Shore County Commissioners Association at the Francis Scott Key Hotel, Frederick, December 8 at 10:30 a. m.

The board has notified Paul F. Kuhns, association secretary, that they will attend.

This is an annual meeting and officers will be elected for the new year. Christian Kahl, Baltimore County, is president.

Among subjects to be discussed by the county commissioners and officials at the session will be school construction in the several counties. This is a major cost item facing nearly all counties, officials claim, because of steady increases of enrollment expected as a result of the heavy wartime birth rates.

The commissioners are expected to make a formal request that the State of Maryland double the incentive funds to counties, so the construction of new schools will not overburden county taxpayers.

City's Promotion Of Fireman Will Be Rescinded

Advancement To Be Made For 60 Days

The promotion of a city fireman which bypassed Civil Service Commission procedure will be placed on a temporary basis pending examination, Commissioner William V. Keegan and CSC members agreed last night. The examination will be held within 60 days.

Commissioner Keegan agreed to rescind the order promoting Francis J. Wallace to a lieutenant at the West Side Fire Station and then promote him for a 60-day period. The CSC said presently ambigious rules governing promotions would be clarified.

In a "frankly and candid" discussion of the promotion of Wallace, which was approved by the Mayor and City Council Monday, both Keegan and commission members expressed their views on the promotion and existing precedents that led up to the misunderstanding.

Keegan Cites Precedent

Commissioner Keegan indicated that because the Civil Service Commission had not requested examinations in three previous promotions, he felt he was within keeping of the precedent in promoting Wallace with a competitive examination. The board members objected.

The CSC members agreed with Keegan that the promotion resulted from the past practices of not holding examinations, and expressed willingness to clarify the existing rules which were blamed for the misunderstanding surrounding the promotion of Wallace.

A statement issued by City Solicitor Thomas B. Finan following the meeting, which was privately conducted, said:

"It was felt that this meeting at which members of the Civil Service Commission and Commissioner Keegan frankly and candidly presented their views concerning this matter did much to clarify the atmosphere concerning the appointments within the Police and Fire Departments. It also laid the foundation for a better understanding in the future."

Will Post Notice

The statement also said the CSC members will shortly cause to be posted in the fire stations a notice that a competitive examination will be held for the position to determine those eligible for the permanent appointment to the position. The statement in part follows:

"It was conceded by the Civil Service Commission that there have been incidents in the past when promotions have been made within specific departments without the Civil Service Commission requiring that an examination be held.

"It was finally agreed by both Commissioner Keegan and the members of the Civil Service Commission that it would be in the best interest of the department to require a promotional examination in the incident."

The order rescinding Wallace's permanent promotion will be submitted to the Mayor and City Council Monday morning along with the temporary promotion order.

County Road Engineer Job Poses Problem

State Requirements For Funds Cited

Appointment of a county engineer poses a serious problem for the Board of Allegany County Commissioners.

Under Maryland law providing for the distribution of funds to counties for construction and maintenance of certain roads as the State Roads Commission shall find, the county must employ, or give reasonable assurance that it will employ a roads engineer having a degree in civil engineering and experience in building roads, or one who has had at least 10 years of practical experience in an executive and supervisory capacity in building roads.

For the past year, Allegany County has been without a county engineer. John J. Smith, Mt. Savage, who has worked on county roads as a laborer, truck driver, foreman and supervisor, has been serving as acting county engineer. When Albert Paye resigned, no one was appointed to succeed him.

At a meeting of the County Commissioners last Tuesday, Charles N. Wilkinson, president of the board, made a motion that Smith be appointed county engineer at a salary of $350 per month. Commissioner James Holmes objected, questioning Smith's qualifications under the law.

No vote was taken on the motion as it was not seconded, and the matter was tabled until yesterday.

At the regular meeting yesterday, no action was taken but it was indicated the question will come up again at next Tuesday's meeting.

Attorney Checks Law

John T. Fey, attorney to the board, submitted an opinion yesterday in which he said, "Having been advised by the County Commissioners that Smith has had 10 years practical experience constructing roads in a supervisory and executive capacity, it is my opinion that he is qualified to serve as roads engineer for Allegany County."

Fey referred to several sections of the Maryland code relative to requirements for a county engineer. He quoted as follows:

"Chapter 560, Acts of 1947, Article 89B, section 158 provides for the distribution of moneys to the county and the delegation of construction and maintenance of certain roads as the State Roads Commission shall find that such county, or is reasonably assured of obtaining the services of a roads engineer having a degree in civil engineering and experience in building roads, or who has had at least ten years practical experience in constructing roads in a supervisory and executive capacity.

"Although the office of county roads engineer is not specifically provided by statute such an office does exist by necessary implication and more particularly as a result of the provisions of the above chapter 560, of the Acts of 1947.

Makes Further Probe

Last night, Fey said he had pursued the question farther and finds that Article 75½ of the State Code which relates to the qualifications for professional engineers, provides that no one can carry the title of engineer, give advice, specifications or any opinions as to compliance etc., unless he is a registered engineer.

To become a registered engineer, Fey said, an individual must have 12 years of practical experience or must be a graduate engineer of a recognized school of engineering. In either event, he must be approved by a state board set up for this purpose and properly certified.

Fey said that in his opinion stating that Smith is qualified, he referred only to the man's experience and evidenced ability as a road superintendent. It would appear, he declared, that a county engineer under the state law is on thing, and a county roads superintendent as interpreted by the board is something else.

In any event, a search of the minutes of the County Commissioners reveals that Smith has not been formally approved as county engineer, and members of the board are divided on the appointment. Wilkinson made the motion, but there was no second and no vote.

Could Lose Road Funds

Numerous public officials and private individuals familiar with the situation are aware that the County Commissioners have included an estimate of $200,000 in their levy and budget as the amount expected from the State of Maryland for roads.

This fund is earmarked for roads by the state and county, and under state law must be spent in a certain manner, under qualified supervision. These qualifications are set up by law.

It is pointed out that if Allegany County continues to operate without a certified, qualified or registered engineer, under the law, the State of Maryland will be obliged to withhold the $200,000 roads funds this year, and other funds in subsequent years, until the county conforms with regulations.

$12,000 Sought In Coal Company Dispute

A suit for $12,000 was docketed in Circuit Court yesterday for The Potomac Big Vein Georges Creek Coal Company, and the Potomac Coal Company of Allegany County, against Karl J. Nickel, Daniel McKenzie, George F. McKenzie and the McNic Construction Company.

William C. Walsh and Charles Z. Heskett are attorneys for the plaintiffs, and explain in their declaration that last August 20, when the plaintiff threatened to sue the defendant for removing coal by stripping from property of the plaintiff, attorneys agreed to settle the claim for $9,250.

A copy of a letter from William M. Somerville, attorney, to Walsh indicated that such a settlement would be made, with $5,000 payable August 27 and the balance on the basis of $500 per month beginning October 1.

Walsh and Heskett say their clients have not received any payment and filed the suit for $12,000.

County's Oldest Forest Fire Warden Recalls State's 5,000-Acre Blaze

Says Carelessness Causes Most Loss

"We haven't seen the best yet," Henry H. Fazenbaker, 76-year old Lonaconing forest warden, said yesterday as he compared new fire-fighting equipment with the crude tools and devices used 37 years ago when he was first appointed a fire warden.

Fazenbaker, the oldest warden in service in this district, and Thomas Loar, 43, Midland, the youngest warden in years of service, met yesterday in the office of William H. Parr, district forester, and looked over some new equipment.

Today, a fire-fighter in the woods is equipped with a fast action Indian pump he can carry on his back, a brush hook, a double bladed axe, a cross-cut saw, a couple of brush rakes, a shovel, a cap and lamp, and various pieces of other hand equipment, plus automatic pumps, tanks on trucks, tractors and other devices designed for combatting fires in the woods.

Thirty-seven years ago, when Fazenbaker first started fighting fires, an Indian pump was available for an entire crew, but it was not as good as the modern type. Men called up to fight fire had to provide their own tools and lamps. The most practical piece of equipment was a large stick with half a donzen prongs on the end that could be used as a rake.

Fazenbaker viewed the changes optimistically and said, "These things are all pretty nice and help do the job faster and easier. But some day these will be out-moded too. You know we are still making progress in everything in this country."

He recalled some of the problems of fire-fighting of the past half a century and said, "Water is now, as it was then, the big problem. Only today, we have faster means of transporting it, better pumps, and better ways of carrying it."

The worst blaze the older warden ever fought, he said, "was in 1931, when fire burned over 5,000 acres on Dan's Mountain." He said, "700 men fought this fire, and it started in July, burned three weeks or more and wasn't controlled until sometime in August." Parr reminded him that this was "Maryland's worst woods fire."

Fazenbaker said, "Yes, I guess it was. We haven't had one as bad since, although there have been some pretty hot ones."

Asked what causes most forest fires, Fazenbaker replied without hesitation. "Smokers." then he explained, "It isn't that people smoke, it's just that they are careless where they throw matches, cigarets and dump their pipes."

Fazenbaker said, "We used to have trouble with boys going into the woods and building fires, but youngsters aren't as bad as they used to be. The department's education program on fire prevention helps and the youngsters seem to understand better than they did 25 years ago."

"The worst bunch are the hunters," he exclaimed. "And they are the ones who should be the most careful, because if they burn down the woods, how can they expect to find any game?"

Fazenbaker said he recalls many stands of high grade timber in Allegany County and has seen much of it cut wantonly and carelessly. Many fine acres have been destroyed by fire and carelessness, he said, but now under a controlled cutting program and the state's general reforestation program, "Timber is coming back."

He predicted that in 25 years or so, this county will have plenty of timber, if everyone continues to cooperate.

"But," he warned, "Fire is the COLLEGE PARK, Dec. 3—(AP)—The Maryland Soil Conservation Committee appointed a new district supervisor and reappointed two others at a meeting here today.

Horace Brauning, Finksburg, was named supervisor of the Carroll Soil District. Reappointed were Wilbert Paul, Mt. Savage, in the Allegany District and Emerson Bishoff, Friendsville, in the Garrett District.

The appointments are for three years.

Striker's Son Is Injured In Yard Of Rome Home

TWUA Asks Judge To Close Plant

ROME, Ga., Dec. 3 (AP)—A ten-year-old son of a striker at the Celanese Corporation's big rayon plant here was punctured with birdshot today as he chopped kindling wood in the back yard.

Floyd County Deputy Sheriff Frank Russell reported Pete Sealock, about 35, a Celanese worker, was jailed for the shooting, charged with assault with intent to murder.

The child is David Atkins, son of Robert Atkins. Dr. Raiden Bellinger at the county hospital said he removed 15 shot from David's hips, back and shoulders.

He described the boy's condition as extremely painful but not necessarily critical.

The shooting was the second incident of the day involving firearms at the Celanese Village. Earlier, a man identified by Russell as George Garrett, also a Celanese worker, was arrested on charges of pointing a pistol at others on the picket line.

Russell said 19 strikers obtained warrants against Garrett from Justice of the Peace T. E. Edwards. Garrett was released under bonds of $1,900—$100 for each charge—to await action by the January grand jury.

The Celanese strike began on Aug. 14, after members of the United Textile Workers of America (CIO) demanded a 15 cents an hour wage increase and the company offered eight cents. The minimum pay rate was about 92 cents an hour and the average rate approximately $1.21.

Complaints from both sides are now pending before the National Labor Relations Board.

James A. Blackwell, Cumberland, national TWUA representative, said last night in Rome that Sealock's arrest took place as an estimated 500 angry strikers surrounded the home where Sealock took refuge before deputy sheriffs whisked him away.

The strikers later appeared in the city of Rome in larger numbers and packed the TWUA Union Hall demanding action.

Health, Physical Education To Be Lecture Topic

Dean J. H. Fox To Discuss Program

The Allegany County Board of Education will move a step nearer in developing adequate and sound education in health and physical education with two meetings planned for December 6 and January 10. The program is for all teaching personnel.

Dean James Harold Fox, Department of Education, George Washington University, Washington, D. C., will open the lectures when he appears at Allegany High School Monday at 7:30 p. m. Dr. Alice Kelliher, Columbia University, will be the January speaker.

In announcing the series of meeting, Dr. Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of schools, said at least two other lecturers of outstanding achievement in educational fields will appear here shortly. He did not give the dates.

The present series is a followup to the program which was undertaken earlier this year. It aims at revising the health and physical education system in Allegany County schools.

Dr. Kopp said the program is so broad that it involves virtually every aspect of child development either directly or indirectly. Consideration will have to be given to the intellectual, social, emotional and biological aspects of human growth, Dr. Kopp declared.

When the reorganization of curriculum is begun, Dr. Kopp said, it will be so comprehensive that it will be impossible not to include virtually all of the teaching staff. For this reason all teachers will attend the lectures. Only principals and physical education instructors attended the original meetings.

It is the purpose of the lecture series, according to Dr. Kopp, to re-emphasize to all teacher personnel—teachers, principals and supervisors—the point of view that education cannot be "compartmentalized," because what affects one aspect of the human makeup affects conditions, in measure, of every other aspect.

He explained "that while all of us know this to be true, we do not always govern our educational practices as if such were the cause."

Man Ordered From City Twice Back

Joseph Koelker, who was ordered to leave the city on two occasions this week, was back in City Jail last night. The only charge was "held for Trial Magistrates Court."

Earlier this week, Koelker, described by police as a vagrant, was ordered to leave the city after questioning in the office of the State's Attorney's office. He was arrested again several hours later and given a hearing in Trial Magistrates Court.

At the hearing Koelker was given a suspended sentence of six months in the Maryland House of Correction on condition he leave the city. Police said he was arrested early last night.

He will be taken to Trial Magistrates Court this morning.

Youth Injured When Truck Hits Bycycle

John Mattingly, 18, of 313 Caroline Street, was treated at Memorial Hospital yesterday at about 3:30 p. m. for a left knee injured when his bicycle was hit by a truck.

Attaches said the accident happened on Wineow Street and identified the driver as W. R. Dicken, 1000 Valley Avenue. Dicken said the boy came from behind a truck before he could see him.

Fifteen-year-old Mary Louise King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. King, 692 Gephart Drive, was admitted to Allegany Hospital last night for observation after being hit by an automobile on Baltimore Street.

Weather

For those who still retain their faith in the weatherman, today will be fair and warmer. Skeptics will take what they get without surprise. Yesterday's figures seem to bear out the prediction, though. Late last night, the thermometer read 42 degrees, only one degree below the maximum temperature. The low reading was a fairly high 33 degrees and there's little need to add that there was 0.31 inches of rain. Numerous wet feet, umbrellas and raincoats bear mute testimony to that.

State Tuberculosis Association X-Rayed 8,000 In This County

Some 8,000 residents of Allegany County received chest X-rays when the portable units of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association visited this area last month, Dr. Winter R. Frantz, city and county health officer, announced yesterday.

He said reports from the mass survey are beginning to be received here and that there is evidence the number of follow-up cases will be large.

About 5,000 of the persons who took the X-rays were from Cumberland and the other 3,000 from other communities of the county.

The survey was made possible by funds from the annual sale of Christmas Seals. William J. Edwards, campaign chairman and president of the Allegany County Tuberculosis Association, said 80 per cent of the funds raised remain here for work such as the survey and the operation of the chest clinics operated by the County Health Department.

During the first 11 months of 1948, the county clinic has given 1,062 X-rays. At least 950 of these persons have had consultations with Dr. I. B. Lyon and Dr. W. F. Williams, who have conducted the clinics.

Hardy County Youth Shot By Mathias Pastor

Lynn David Swisher Victim Of Accident

Hardy County's second hunting fatility in less than three weeks was a 21-year-old Baker, W. Va., youth who was fatally wounded yesterday when he was accidentally shot by Rev. Guy F. Ludwig, Mathias, about five miles west of Wardensville on state Route 55, according to West Virginia State Police.

The victim, Lynn David Swisher, had strayed from his position on a hunting stand when Rev. Ludwig sighted the white badge on his cap moving behind a rock, members of the hunting party said. Thinking the moving object was a deer's mouth, the minister shot Swisher through the left side of the head with a 30-30 Winchester Carbine rifle.

Cpl. F. L. Rousch, of the Moorefield State Police, who investigated, said the top of the back of the youth's head was completely blown off. He said the acident happened about 9 a. m. and Swisher only lived about 15 or 20 minutes afterward ,never regaining consciousness.

Dr. A. D. McCoy, Wardensville physician, was called to the scene but arrived some time after the youth had died. Besides State Police, Hardy County Prosecuting Attorney W. D. McCauley was notified.

Cpl. Rousch explained that the foggy morning and a growth of grapevines in that section, which is about 30 yards north of a water fountain between Baker and Wardensville, would make it difficult to distinguish objects clearly. At the time of the accident, Rev. Ludwig was about 110 feet away from Swisher.

Both Cpl. Rousch and McCauley indicated there would be no inquest because the acidental nature of the shooting. Trooper J .W. Davis also investigated.

In the 14-member hunting party was a brother of the dead youth, Don Swisher.

Swisher lived with and was employed by Harold Ludwig who owns a chicken farm and concrete block plant about four miles east of Baker. Ludwig is a first cousin of the Mathias minister.

The dead hunter was unmarried and a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Swisher, Rio.

Rev. Ludwig has been pastor of the Mathias Brethren Church for over 15 years and formerly taught in Hardy County schools.

Spuds Boost Price Of Market Basket

Spuds, upon which the government spent some $40,000,000 through its price support program last year, contributed to a 15-cent increase in the Chamber of Commerce food basket this week.

A 10-cent increase in the price of a peck of potatoes to 55 cents and a five-cent boost in butter prices to 77 cents upped the cost of the 15 items to $9.38 in local stores this week, according to prices released by the Chamber. The same 15 items cost $9.23 a week ago.

Veteran Units To Meet County Delegates Here

Public Session Is Set For City Hall

The recommendation that Maryland Veterans of World War II be paid a state bonus is expected to be the principal topic at a meeting of veteran organization representatives and the Allegany County Delegation to the General Assembly at a meeting in City Hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

Horace P. Whitworth, Jr., chairman of the delegation, said the meeting was requested by veteran organization representatives, but added it also will be open to the public. Other business will be considered if brought up, Whitworth declared.

The six-man delegation will hear recommendations and accept for study suggestions about a bonus for Maryland veterans, but will not commit their stand on the subject, according to Whitworth. The veteran groups have gone on record as favoring a bonus for servicemen.

Representatives of the veteran units are expected to explain their opinions on the bonus as well as suggest ways that the money can be raised and the terms on which it should be alloted to the servicemen.

The meeting will likely be the only public appearance of the delegation in body before the General Assembly convenes in January.

Earlier, there were indications that the delegates would meet with the Mayor and City Council in an afternoon session, but members of both groups said such a caucaus was not scheduled.

Whitworth said the municipal body usually meets with the delegates in Annapolis after the state session is underway. The meetings are usually of a private nature, he declared, with controversial matters being aired before the public prior to the introduction of such measures in the assembly.

County Officials To Attend Meeting

Members of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, their attorney and clerk will attend a meeting of the Western Shore County Commissioners Association at the Francis Scott Key Hotel, Frederick, December 8 at 10:30 a. m.

The board has notified Paul F. Kuhns, association secretary, that they will attend.

This is an annual meeting and officers will be elected for the new year. Christian Kahl, Baltimore County, is president.

Among subjects to be discussed by the county commissioners and officials at the session will be school construction in the several counties. This is a major cost item facing nearly all counties, officials claim, because of steady increases of enrollment expected as a result of the heavy wartime birth rates.

The commissioners are expected to make a formal request that the State of Maryland double the incentive funds to counties, so the construction of new schools will not overburden county taxpayers.

City's Promotion Of Fireman Will Be Rescinded

Advancement To Be Made For 60 Days

The promotion of a city fireman which bypassed Civil Service Commission procedure will be placed on a temporary basis pending examination, Commissioner William V. Keegan and CSC members agreed last night. The examination will be held within 60 days.

Commissioner Keegan agreed to rescind the order promoting Francis J. Wallace to a lieutenant at the West Side Fire Station and then promote him for a 60-day period. The CSC said presently ambigious rules governing promotions would be clarified.

In a "frankly and candid" discussion of the promotion of Wallace, which was approved by the Mayor and City Council Monday, both Keegan and commission members expressed their views on the promotion and existing precedents that led up to the misunderstanding.

Keegan Cites Precedent

Commissioner Keegan indicated that because the Civil Service Commission had not requested examinations in three previous promotions, he felt he was within keeping of the precedent in promoting Wallace with a competitive examination. The board members objected.

The CSC members agreed with Keegan that the promotion resulted from the past practices of not holding examinations, and expressed willingness to clarify the existing rules which were blamed for the misunderstanding surrounding the promotion of Wallace.

A statement issued by City Solicitor Thomas B. Finan following the meeting, which was privately conducted, said:

"It was felt that this meeting at which members of the Civil Service Commission and Commissioner Keegan frankly and candidly presented their views concerning this matter did much to clarify the atmosphere concerning the appointments within the Police and Fire Departments. It also laid the foundation for a better understanding in the future."

Will Post Notice

The statement also said the CSC members will shortly cause to be posted in the fire stations a notice that a competitive examination will be held for the position to determine those eligible for the permanent appointment to the position. The statement in part follows:

"It was conceded by the Civil Service Commission that there have been incidents in the past when promotions have been made within specific departments without the Civil Service Commission requiring that an examination be held.

"It was finally agreed by both Commissioner Keegan and the members of the Civil Service Commission that it would be in the best interest of the department to require a promotional examination in the incident."

The order rescinding Wallace's permanent promotion will be submitted to the Mayor and City Council Monday morning along with the temporary promotion order.
